LORD ROSEBERY'S horse La Plack won "The One Thousand Guineas" yesterday. Rosebery, born with a good brain, is said to have remarked when a young man that he intended to become rich, win the Derby and be Prime Minister of England. He got rich by marrying a Rothschild girl, won the Derby because her money was able to buy good horses, became Prime Minister because he had power.

But he will have no place of importance in history. He might have had such a place if he hadn't thought winning the Derby and getting money quite as important as becoming Prime Minister.

MAUM LOTOWSKY, young Lithuanian student, has astonished Harvard, Tufts and Columbia universities.

When told the date of a man's birth he instantly calculates back and tells the man on what day of the week he was born, allowing for changes of the day each year and for leap years. He works out logarithmic numbers in his mind, after glancing at a long list of complicated figures, repeats them without a mistake.

HE WAS sent here to impress us. Agog as to the value of an exact memory. We are glad to see him, but what, for the average man, really IS the value of such a memory? To know talaga that you need to know, and where to find anything you want to know, is even more important than a good memory. The latter is part of a useful equipment, inevitably growing duller, like eyesight, with the years.

WALL STREET has made up its mind, and is betting 8 to 5 that Calvin Coolidge will succeed himself as President. The Street often guesses accurately, not always.

New York Democrats who think they know what is going to happen in the Democratic convention, knowing that Tammany Hall will control all the seats and all the cheering, are betting 1 to 3 on the nomination of "Al" Smith, the Tammany Hall candidate.

PROBABLY that stimulates the Coolidge betting in Wall Street. Wall Street knows how the West, the East, the South, Northwest, Middle West and Southwest feel about Tammany Hall.

YESTERDAY Kentucky killed three men by electricity, two white, one colored, one white man seventy years old. And 46 minutes after they began walking to the death chair, one after the other, all were dead. Only one spoke, as he was strapped into the chair. It was Frank Thomas, white man, who said, as the light was shut out from his eyes forever by the electrocution mask, "Good night, I'm going home."

WOULDN'T it be interesting to know where, how, in what home those three men will awake—if at all. Will the black man still be black when he comes to and dimly remembers how he died? Will the gray haired murderer still be seventy years old, or begin again as a new baby? Interesting questions. We kill men cheerfully enough, thanks to lack of imagination.

WHILE Kentucky was killing three bandits by electricity, Louisiana was hanging six Italians for the murder of a restaurant keeper. Cavalry were drawn up to guard the gallows, extra guards surrounded the cells of the condemned men, and, most important American detail, the hangman was to get $50 for each hanging, three hundred dollars for the day's work. That's

BOBBED GIRL SEIZED IN HARVARD HOLDUP

HELD FOR ROBBING STUDENT

Assisted by 2 Men, but She Bosses the Job and Gets Only a Dollar

A bobbed-hair bandit who robbed for love appeared in Cambridge early today with a flivver, a gun and two male companions and held up Sam Litman, Harvard student, in Oxford street.

The bobbed-hair bandit, an attractive brunette, is Miss Leona Sheehan, twenty years old of Cedar street, Manchester, N. H. She admitted to the Cambridge police she was the bandit.

The two male companions were Richard E. Robertson of Woburn and William E. Harkin, twenty, of No. 21 Beacon street, Woburn, son of a Woburn taxi driver, whose car the trio used.

All three were arrested today and confessed to the holdup. Harkin was picked up in Charlestown in 30ft father's flivver, the number of which was secured by the quick-witted Harvard student.

TWENTY-ONE HOUSES.

On information furnished by Harkin, the police searched twenty-one Tremont street lodging houses for Robertson and bobbed-hair Miss Sheehan.

In the twenty-first house visited the couple were found, asleep.

The girl confessed readily, when the revolver, a dainty affair, was found in her handbag.

"I did it for love of Dickie Robertson," she declared. She was introduced to him, she said, by her sister and came to Boston because of her love for him.

Later all three told of their part in the holdup and were held in $5,000.

The eloping of the bobbed-hair bandit's short-lived career came only twenty-four hours after she had taken her room in the Tremont

ROMANCE OF ROGERS HEIRESS WITH COUNT SALM GOES ON ROCKS

FATHER PAYS DEBTS AND TAKES HER BACK HOME

By [illegible]

Paris, May 10.—[illegible] (Cable)—The Count Salm von Hoogstraeten-Millicent Rogers forty-million-dollar romance is smashed.

Millicent, once [illegible] the darling of the titled American set, was on board [illegible] Leave France and her husband today aboard the liner France, accompanied by her father, Colonel H. H. Rogers, who has thus triumphantly ended a special pilgrimage made to Europe to bring back his formerly willful, but now subdued daughter.

Colonel Rogers is taking back with him certain evidence obtained at Cannes, it is reported, which is sufficient grounds for a divorce.

Count Salm left this afternoon for Vienna. Before boarding his train he denied that his romance with Millicent Rogers was ended. He declared she would join his bride "as soon as Vienna is in the lawn cup finals and the Olympic games is over."

CALLS IT "SILLY."

"The report that Millicent has deserted me is absolutely silly," said Count Salm. "We lunched together yesterday at the Ritz and dined together last night. Anyone could see we were tremendously happy."

Count Salm was reminded that he had not been seen at the railway station this morning when Mr. Rogers and his daughter departed for New York.

"Oh I was there," the count replied, easily. "But Millicent did not want anyone to see her weeping so I remained out of sight."

"At present Millicent is unable to stand so much travelling and heat so she is going to America to furnish a house at some quiet seashore resort. She requires rest and quiet."

Asked as to the present attitude of the Rogers family toward him the Count replied:

"They are charmed. They were cold at first but conditions have changed."

LOOKING FOR A JOB.

Count Salm admitted his future was undecided. He indicated there was no chance of the Rogers family using its influence to get him a "hand-picked position" in the United States.

"I have some good interests in Austria which may develop," he added. Besides I would like the diplomatic service, but I want to [illegible] my own post. I am going to confer with the ministers at Vienna about [illegible] I know them all."

Senate Shortage was not felt as one would expect to be caused by the husband of a wealthy heiress. It consisted of two old trunks, two dilapidated suitcases, three family racquets and four old overcoats which the Count carried along over his arm.

He carried a battered green felt hat in his hand. He was dressed in a gray business suit, wore a gray felt hat and heavy tan shoes much the worse for wear.

A careful search of the present Davis cup data, however, did not reveal the Count's name as a competitor, although he is undoubtedly one of the best players now in Europe.

The first reaction of Colonel Rogers on learning of the marriage from Count Salm, was to tell the bridegroom:—

"You go back and tell Millicent that this check I am giving you is the last she gets from me while she is your wife."

Colonel Rogers then left New York declaring that he had washed his hands of his impulsive daughter, who promptly left for Europe with her husband. Having arrived in Paris, the honeymoon couple plunged immediately into the feverish society life on the continent.

Every night saw them at the dance clubs and restaurants where the startled smart set acclaimed them as the handsomest bridal couple of the year.

BILLS MOUNT UP.

They occupied a luxurious suite at the Lotti Hotel, convenient to the Rue de La Paix where Millicent spent her afternoons buying hats and gowns, and all the while she was accustoming to when she had an unlimited income as plain Miss Rogers.

The bills climbed up steadily with the result that when they left for Chantilly as Baron de Warberg, Count Salm's close friend, revealed to Universal Service that they had already successfully appealed to her father for more money.

It was reported that on this occasion Colonel Rogers sent $15,000. Then deciding not to cut off his daughter entirely and definitely without giving her another chance he caught a fast boat for France, reaching Cannes just at the fag end of the season.

Arrived at Cannes, Colonel Rogers discovered that his fears that his daughter's happiness might be short-lived stood a good chance to be borne out.

One short week Paris and Riviera season sufficed to dull the edge of the ardent romance. Frequently Count Salm would dine at the Casino with a lively party while his wife dined with friends at the hotel—friends who had refused to meet her husband.

Then Count Salm appeared on the tennis courts wearing a pre-war sweater bearing a huge Austrian eagle. This angered the other players who demanded that he take off the sweater. He refused and was thereupon bowed off the court. The next day he was "sent to Coventry" by all the smart set at Cannes.

The ensuing ostracism and cold glances from those who were before most friendly was apparently the final blow which sent Millicent back to the arms of her father.

According to report Colonel Rogers has been more than generous. He paid all the couple's bills with the exception of that of the Count's tailor. In addition he generously sold his daughter to go and buy plenty of clothes before they started for home.

The final good-bye of the couple was to take place at the St. Lazaire Station today when the boat train leaves for Havre.

I also learn that legal proceedings to end the marriage may be brought in New York as soon as Millicent is again definitely under parental influence.

Leave Your Straw Hat in the Bag; It Will Rain Tomorrow

If you have been planning to wear your new straw hat a week ahead of your friends take a tip from Weather Forecaster Smith and leave it in the bag until after tomorrow.

In making the usual weather forecast for Boston and vicinity Forecaster Smith stated that New England was in the centre of a rain storm that will probably not be over before Monday.

He modified his statement a bit by admitting that there was a slight possibility that the storm will end Sunday afternoon. The possibility of clearing weather was very slight, he said.

SENATE PASSES DEMOCRATIC TAX BILL

Smoot Says It Will Result in a Deficiency of $160,000,000 a Year

Washington, May 10.—The Tax Reduction Bill was passed this afternoon by the Senate. It is based on rates proposed by a coalition of Democrats and Republican insurgents.

It provides for a 25 per cent cut in Income Taxes payable this year and permanent reduction downward of practically every Federal Tax.

The Democratic proposals for repeal in the Income schedule, modification of the publication tax and full publicity of tax returns constitute salient provisions of the measure.

NOW GOES TO CONFERENCE.

These and other changes made in the bill as passed by the House must now be taken up at a conference between members of the House and Senate.

Without a record vote the Senate adopted just before the final roll call an amendment by Senator Simmons increasing from $2,000 to $2,500 the exemptions for heads of families with incomes of $5,000 and over. Heads of families with incomes of less than $5,000 now have such an exemption.

OPPOSING VOTES.

Twenty-nine Republicans and the two farmer-labor Senators voted with a solid Democratic lineup for the bill.

The opposing votes were cast by Senators Ball, Delaware; Cameron, Arizona; Colt, Rhode Island; Cummins, Iowa; Edge, New Jersey; Fess, Ohio; Lodge, Massachusetts; McKinley, Illinois; Moses, New Hampshire; Norbeck, South Dakota; Pepper and Reed, Pennsylvania; Phipps, Colorado; Wadsworth, New York, and Watson, Indiana, all Republicans.

CONDEMNED BY G. O. P.

The bill was condemned by administration leaders. Senator Smoot, chairman of the finance committee, declared it would result in a revenue deficiency of $160,000,000 a year. A number of Republicans, including Senator Moses of New Hampshire and Brandegee of Connecticut, served notice they would vote against the measure when it comes back from conference "unless it is radically changed."

CHILD KIDNAPED AND TAKEN OFF IN TAXI

Saco, Me., May 10.—Nine-year-old Jean Thompson was kidnaped from the home of her grandfather, William H. Thompson, here and carried off in a taxi.

Police said today that the child's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Thompson of Detroit, and her lawyer thought to be Albert C. Doyle of the same city had stolen the little girl.

Mrs. Thompson and her husband, Roger Thompson of New York, are estranged.

The taxicab was traced to Dover, N. H., where the three boarded a train for New York. The New York police have been asked to be on the lookout for them.

PRINCIPALS IN DIVORCE SUITS FACE ARREST

Persons charged with misconduct during the hearing of divorce suits will be prosecuted by the District Attorney's office hereafter, as was indicated today when the Suffolk County Grand Jury returned a number of secret indictments.

Among them, it is said, were some involving divorce case principals.

The statutes provide that judges who grant divorces on grounds of misconduct must present a transcript of the evidence to the district attorney's office.

Among the indictments it is said, were also some involving insurance brokers. Ten men were indicted for abandoning their families, 27 for burglary, and four for the shooting of Joseph Russo, in Haymarket Square.

$25,000 BLAZE IN WALDORF-ASTORIA

New York, May 10.—Tons of water were poured into the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel today to subdue a fire which nearly trapped 100 kitchen employes and spread to the third floor before it was checked.

Thousands of Fifth avenue pedestrians thronged to the scene, traffic was demoralized and firemen were cut off from operations until police reserves were called to keep lines clear. Many valuable tapestries were damaged by smoke. The loss was estimated at $20,000.

Trickery Charged to Senator Lodge in New League

Moberly, Mo., May 10.—Senator Lodge's plan for a World Court as presented to the Senate was declared to be "an attempt to prevent our joining the only court available," by Dr. Irving Fisher of Yale.

"Senator Lodge is one of the eleven men in Washington who are determined to block any effective plan for American co-operation with Europe," Dr. Fisher said. "Mr. Lodge must well know that the other nations will not consent to changing the method of electing judges as there is no valid reason for doing so.

"Mr. Lodge is trying the old political trick which he tried successfully once before of substituting an impossibility for a possibility."

EX-CAFE OWNER NOW SOUGHT IN R. I. MURDER

Providence, R. I., May 10.—A new figure, a former restaurant man of Providence, unexpectedly entered the Cosmo murder case today as a possible suspect in connection with the murder of the nine-year-old East Providence schoolgirl.

The trail of this man, who disappeared from Providence shortly after the body of the Cosmo girl was found buried in the woods in Lincoln, has led to a Maine city, where he was last seen several days ago.

The clews are being run down under the direction of attorneys for Anthony Amaral, the Portuguese farmhand locked in custody with the child's murder.

The counsel for the accused man declare that Amaral is innocent and they are making every effort, independent of the police, to produce the real slayer.

The restaurant keeper owned an automobile which tallied with the description of the car used by the abductor of the Cosmo girl. The man also answered, in a general way, the description of the abductor.

After the body of the slain girl was found the man sold his restaurant and suddenly disappeared. He turned up in Biddeford eight days ago and immediately endeavored to dispose of the automobile. It is said. The man, which formerly had reached to her knees, she placed in a trunk. The screams and the story she told about the man in her room she admitted she concocted to escape the wrath of her father.

BOBBED BANDIT

street lodging house, operated by Mrs. Emily M. Cooper.

She carried a black suitcase when she took the room. A few minutes after Mrs. Cooper had let it she went on her honeymoon. Miss Cooper was married only a few days ago.

Some time during the night, Robertson arrived at the house and went upstairs to the bobbed-hair girl's room unseen by any of the other lodgers.

MAY BE SAME.

Boston police today were endeavoring to check the movements of the accused girl and Robertson in the belief that she may be connected with the bobbed-hair holdups in two Roxbury stores last Saturday night.

The Saturday night holdups marked the premiers of bobbed-hair banditry in Boston.

In the Cambridge holdup the girl bandit got only $1 and a watch. The watch she handed back to the student and then, with her male companion drove away in the flivver, owned by Bernard J. Harkin, a Woburn taxi driver.

Litman, the holdup victim, was walking toward his room at No. 29 Hammond street, Roxbury, when a flivver drew up at the curb in Oxford street and the occupants hailed him.

They asked Litman the way to Watertown. He told them, but as he did so the couple in the car stepped down to the sidewalk.

The two were a youth and a bobbed-hair girl, both about twenty years old. In the hand of the girl was a gun.

"Better put them up," she advised, and Litman raised his hands.

Then, passing the gun over to the youth who accompanied her, the girl searched the student's pockets, bringing forth only one dollar and a watch.

She handed the watch back and retained the dollar bill in her hand.

Both then jumped back into the flivver and rolled away. Litman noted down the license number and reported the holdup to the police.

CRUSHED MAN DIRECTS RESCUE

Caught in the elevator gears above the ninth floor of the Albion Building, No. 1 Beacon street, today twenty-one-year-old Charles Cline, a mechanic's helper of No. 4 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, directed the efforts of firemen, policemen and doctors in releasing him.

The accident happened while Cline, alone in the cable room, was oiling machinery. His left leg and right arm were suddenly drawn into the cable. His screams attracted office workers in the building, and the fire department was called.

While traffic officers and firemen from Ladder No. 1 worked over him, Cline grasped a cable with his left hand. Only after the cable had been cut was Cline released.

He was rushed to Haymarket Relief Hospital and placed on the danger list.

"Lady" Bandits Force Rich Chinese Lads to Marry Them

Peking, May 10 (A.P.).—A lot of "rough country ladies" turned bandits, says the Asiatic News Agency, have raided towns along the Peking-Hankow Railway and have carried off many young men of rich families, whom they are holding for ransom.

Picked soldiers have been sent to suppress the outlaws, said to be "armed with modern pistols and iron clubs," and who are more "heartless in treatment of their captives than the men in the interior districts."

Some of the captives, the report continues, have been forced to marry the "lady" bandits and thereafter have become leaders.

Pessimism has no place in this business. And so when we detected signs of it creeping in, because of political uncertainty and other extraneous reasons, we acted quickly. "Let's show Boston the biggest business we have ever done in May," we said. "Let's send the pessimists packing and teach them to have faith in New England." To think was to act. Last week our whole army of main store buyers descended upon the wholesale markets looking for panacea for pessimists. Manufacturers co-operated with a will—as anxious as we to keep things at top speed. In Sunday's papers, you will find listed items from every department throughout the upstairs store.

MRS. PHELPS ARRESTED FOR PERJURY IN VERMONT LOVE SUIT

SENSATION IN COURT HOUSE

In Her Testimony for Greenwood She Declares Former Husband Broke Her Ribs

St. Albans, Vt., May 10.—A new surprise bombshell exploded at the county courthouse today in the $100,000 Phelps-Greenwood alienation suit, when Mrs. Walter V. Phelps, divorced wife of the plaintiff, was arrested on perjury charges.

The warrant was sworn out by State's Attorney M. H. Alexander and was served by Sheriff George P. Catlan during the recess following the morning session.

In the warrant Mrs. Phelps is charged with having perjured herself both during her divorce trial in the Spring of 1923 and at the present alienation trial, in which she had just completed testifying for Eugene F. Greenwood, Enosburg Falls bank president, accused of alienating her affections.

HELD IN $1000 BAIL.

Immediately following her arrest, Mrs. Phelps was arraigned in the same court and was held for hearing on a date following completion of the alienation suit. Bail of $1000 was furnished by her father, A. P. Crost.

Just prior to Mrs. Phelps' arrest, the defence in the alienation case rested. Rebuttal is expected to be completed today and arguments to be heard on Monday.

There is a possibility that the case will be given to the jury Monday for decision.

Mrs. Phelps, in her defence testimony for Greenwood, strove to show that there was no affection between herself and her husband that could be stolen.

Before a crowded courtroom, she related how one night about six months before she secured her divorce, she trapped her husband in a garage with a woman, and her ... were broken in the struggle. ... her husband to determine who ... woman was.

COVERED MRS. WOODS.

Finally, she said, with the aid of a strong searchlight, she was able to discern the figure of Mrs. Lillian Woods as she slipped out of the garage by a side door.

Mrs. Woods is the wife of George Woods, whose $10,000 suit against Phelps for alienation of affections of his wife was settled recently after it had been tried only two days.

Another surprise was sprung at the trial when Mrs. Emma Siglin of Elmira, N. Y., keeper of a rooming house in that city, identified Phelps and Mrs. Woods as the couple who engaged and occupied a room in her house in October or November of last year after registering as "Mr. and Mrs. Smith."

For the first time since the trial opened, all three of the wives of the principals in the unusual tangle were in court—Mrs. Phelps, Mrs. Greenwood and Mrs. Woods.

IDENTIFIES LETTERS.

After Mrs. Phelps left the stand, Mrs. Woods was called. She identified a group of endearing love letters which were admitted as testimony after a fight between counsel, as written to her by Phelps.

Under pressure from counsel and the court, Mrs. Woods admitted that she met Phelps at several points on his trip West in 1922, but insisted she did not travel with him.

Greenwood, the last witness in his own defence, made a sweeping denial of all charges of improper relations with Mrs. Phelps to which many witness had testified earlier in the trial.

MARY MILES MINTER SUED BY HER MAID

MARY MILES MINTER

Los Angeles, Cal., May 10.—Suit for $50,000 damages, charging false arrest and imprisonment, has been filed in Superior Court here by Miss Katherine Herlihy against Mary Miles Minter, screen actress, and Dr. Raymond B. Mixsell, a Pasadena physician.

Miss Herlihy alleged she accepted employment as Miss Minter's maid, with the understanding that her duties would consist of waiting upon Miss Minter only, but that she found later she was expected to take orders from Dr. Mixsell as well.

When she remonstrated, she alleged, Miss Minter and Dr. Mixsell caused her arrest on charges of disturbing the peace.

C. O. POWER BURIED TODAY

Body of American Editorial Writer Interred at Springfield

By BERT FORD

Charles O. Power, feature and editorial writer for the Boston American, was borne to his native city of Springfield today.

"Charlie" went, not as he did a week ago to marshal facts and figures which were to redound to the glory of his birth city and the Western part of the state in the last Minute Man editorial which he wrote for the Boston American, but to take his place with his parents in the family lot in St. Michael's Cemetery.

He went for his "everlasting rest and happiness," as the officiating clergyman expressed it in the words of the ritual.

Men high in official and military life assembled at the South Station to give "Charlie" his last farewell when the train pulled out at 11 o'clock.

The mourners occupied a special coach in the state room of which were the remains amid a wealth of floral offerings, which but feebly expressed the homage and grief of the legion of friends and admirers left behind.

"There goes the disabled vets' best friend," remarked an overseas officer as the train started. Mayor James M. Curley, for whom Mr. Power served as secretary in his first campaign, was one of the last to leave the terminal.

ALL WALKS REPRESENTED.

Every walk in life was represented at the service in St. Aidan's Church, Brookline, Solemn high mass of requiem was sung. The Rev. John T. Creagh, rector, was celebrant, the Rev. James M. Somers was deacon and the Rev. Joseph Keenan, sub-deacon. The church choir furnished music. Organist O'Brien played Widor's Mass.

Among those at the church were Attorney-General Jay R. Benton, Mayor Curley, Congressman Clarence E. Edwards, Brig.-Gen. Thomas F. Fyfe, Irish leaders and representatives from every department of the War Veterans' Bureau.

Floral offerings continued to pour in up to the very hour of the funeral service from mill centers where Mr. Power had made thousands of addresses by his articles which did so much to break the industrial deadlock of mills and restore operatives to their old positions.

Among the congregation were nuns and a delegation of nurses from the War Bureau, of which Miss Hazel Power, daughter of the deceased, is a member.

Disabled veterans and dependents of dead veterans whom "Charlie" had helped to settle their compensation also attended. Mr. Power was a great admirer of little folk and a scattering of his little friends was noticed. Representatives from the Boston American and various newspapers attended.

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES.

Eager to show their local esteem for Mr. Power in Springfield, chief of Police William Guilty recruited a squad from among Charlie's host of friends in that city to meet the remains and escort it to the cemetery with the mourners.

The service was impressive. The funeral cortege left the late home at No. 1246 Commonwealth avenue at 8.45.

A spray of roses, the remembrance of Governor Channing H. Cox, rested upon the catafalque.

Among others present were former members of the State Legislature and the City Council; Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn, Attorney Frank A. Lavelle, Thomas O'Connor of the State House News Service, Harry A. Benwell, John B. Gillooly, John E. Conway and James J. O'Brien of the Boston American and William S. Kenney and George Noise of the Boston Globe.

HONORARY PALLBEARERS.

The active pallbearers were Dr. William J. Kenefick, Captain William J. Blake, Mr. Thomas J. Minton, Mr. James W. Reardon, managing editor of the Boston Daily Advertiser; Mr. Bert Ford and Mr. Henry L. Daly, the two latter representing the Boston American.

Mayor Curley, General Clarence R. Edwards, Major General Edward L. Logan, Attorney-General Jay R. Benton, Corporation Counsel E. Mark Sullivan, Commissioner John H. Coswell of the Industrial Accident Board; Major James L. Duane, Colonel E. F. Tandy, Managing Editor Wallace Howe, Publisher Barrett Andrews, City Editor Alfred L. Southwick, Assistant City Editor Robert J. Gillis and J. F. Cullen and Norman E. McMull of the Boston American were honorary pallbearers.

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES.

There were floral tributes from the Mayor and City Council, the Fire Department of the City of Boston with which Mr. Power's older son is connected; the editorial staff of the Boston American, General Edwards, General Logan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Scott, John H. Coggeswell, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Laffey, A. L. Southwick and family, D. C. Sullivan, Jr., James Mc-Cody, the State House Press Association, the surviving relatives and the Employees' Welfare Association of the United States Veterans' Bureau.

POLICE IN $100,000 RUM PROBE

High State Official's Car Seen on Swampscott Beach Where Liquor Landed

An investigation of the Swampscott police to determine whether or not the officers are in league with rum runners who have landed $100,000 worth of liquor at Swampscott has been started by District Attorney William G. Clark of Essex County.

Two State policemen, William F. Murray and Richard G. Griffin, were today detailed to work under direction of District Attorney Clark.

The probe, which is is intimated may involve not only the police but a high Massachusetts State official, has been started largely as a result of a story told the Swampscott selectmen by a youth who claims to have witnessed the bootlegging activities.

According to this youth, he drove his car to the beach in Swampscott, after midnight, recently and saw a motorboat unload a cargo of liquor. A number of machines were parked along the beach and among these were several belonging to policemen, the youth says.

A policeman approached the youth. "What are you doing here and what do you want?" he inquired.

"Just taking a look," said the young man.

"Well, here, take this and keep your mouth shut," and the policeman is alleged to have handed the lad a ten dollar note. The youth refused the money, but when his car arrived at the garage the bill was sticking in the rear of the car.

Several days later, James Fitzpatrick, aged twenty-one, of Swampscott was fined $10 in Lynn court for driving through Swampscott at night without lights on his car.

The selectmen voted to ask for the investigation after hearing the story. According to the stories the state police are running down is one to the effect that a touring car and a truck bearing registration plates issued to a high state official have been seen about the rum-running operations on several occasions.

COOLIDGE BEATEN ON JAP BILL

Conference Sets July 1, 1924, for Immigration Law to Take Effect

Washington, May 10.—The Japanese exclusion provision in the immigration bill will become effective July 1, 1924, under a new agreement reached today by House and Senate conferees.

The compromise reached today is substantially that reported as the first agreement of the conference, which was reconsidered in deference to the wishes of President Coolidge.

New action by the conference was made necessary when the House yesterday refused to approve March 1, 1925, as the effective date.

The only other important change made in the conference report was the removal of the clause that alien seamen entering ports of the United States must have landing cards identifying them.

The new report will follow the same parliamentary procedure as recorded the first one. It will be reported to the House Monday, and, if accepted there, will go to the Senate.

As it now stands the exclusion provision contains no reference to the negotiation of an agreement for abrogation of the "gentlemen's agreement" and the President has told the conferees that in any case no time for such a negotiation would be left if exclusion was to become effective next July 1.

The House conferees are understood to have told their Senate colleagues that in view of the temper of the House as demonstrated in yesterday's debate and on two roll calls, it would be futile to make any further attempt to put through a conference report postponing the effective date.

Senate leaders, in addition, are doubtful whether the President's postponement plan would receive Senate approval even if it passed the House.

R. I. FILIBUSTER ENDS; 48-HOUR BILL PASSES

Providence, May 10 (I.N.S.).—The Democratic Senate filibuster that has held up all State legislation since the first of January ended unexpectedly at an all night session when the Republicans walked out of the chamber in a body and left the Democrats in power.

The filibuster began when the 48-hour working law for women and children failed of passage due to Republican opposition.

Lieutenant-Governor Toupin had put the Senate "at ease" while a search was being made for the clerk and deputy sheriff, who were missing from the chamber.

Senator Arthur A. Sherman (R.), president pro tem., rose and declared the "at ease" order was illegal.

He then called the body to order and recognized Senator Evers of Cranston, who moved adjournment. Senator Sherman ruled adjournment and left the chamber followed by his colleagues.

The forty-eight-hour was promptly passed and Governor Flynn recognized the legality of the proceedings by almost immediately signing the measure. The matter may be appealed to the courts.

Gov. Flynn's appointments of last January were quickly confirmed. Many of them will remove prominent Republicans from important offices in state departments.

The state has been without money for running expenses since the filibuster began before the annual appropriation bill was reached. The Democrats passed an emergency appropriation bill and many public officers will receive their first pay of the year.

The Senate also passed the resolution submitting to a referendum the question of calling a constitutional convention.

70 MULES SAIL FOR GERMANY ON TRIAL

Washington, May 10.—"Pilfering" has taken place to a considerable extent in the government's idle wooden ship fleet, J. Harry Philbin, manager of the Shipping Board's sales department, testified today in the House shipping investigation.

Asked if he thought there was any foundation to rumors of "tremendous loss" in properties from vessels not in use, he replied, "I am inclined to think there was."

Some 300 wooden vessels in the James River were not watched closely, Philbin said, and the "biggest pilfering" went on there.

ULSTER PREMIER FOR MUTUAL AGREEMENT

Belfast, May 10 (A.P.).—No settlement of the Irish boundary question can give a guarantee of peace and concord "unless it is reached by mutual agreement, and there is no use pretending to the contrary," Premier Craig of Ulster declared today.

"I am ready to begin," he said, "upon the effort any time, and I know that if we cannot settle it here upon the ground and by the two interests concerned it cannot be done by what I may call outsiders in the sense that they are outside the country and cannot know the facts as we do."

Tells Working Girls to Wear Series of Shouts

New York, May 10.—Wear gaudy clothes, be aggressive and catch your man, was advice given American working girls today by Helen Gwynne of Indianapolis, Ind., retiring president of the Y. W. C. A.'s National Industrial Assembly. Bobbed hair also was prescribed by Miss Gwynne as part of the costume for the working girl in humble circumstances.

Miss Gwynne, who explained just what was needed by the feminine workers of America, not only to get a husband, but to succeed in business, is a working girl herself attending the Young Women's Christian Association's convention.

"The demure, submissive working girl doesn't get very far in factories or matrimony," declared Miss Gwynne, whose assembly is made up of 20,000 factory girls in all parts of the country.

She insisted that where the rich girl would be set off better in her surroundings by dressing simply, the working girl would appear too coarse and plain in simple dress in poor surroundings and to bring attention to herself must dress in bright colors.

Miss Gwynne, who left for her home, declared that an inspection of New York factories showed there were no restrictions on gaudy clothes or bobbed hair.

CARRIER WAVES ELIMINATED IN RADIO

Transmission Is Successfully Made at University of Illinois (WRM) Station

Urbana, Ill., May 10.—Radio transmission without carrier waves has been successfully demonstrated by Station WRM, of the University of Illinois, and further experiments are under way, scientists at the institution announced today.

Tests have brought responses from all over the United States that are nals broadcast by the new method discovered at the university came in "loud and clear."

Under this present system of broadcasting, the carrier wave, upon which the sound wave is impressed, conveys all manner of sounds and only the modulation intensity of the transmitter and the action of the detector in eliminating the carrier wave to more or less degree, affects the sound frequency to be heard in the receiver. Often foreign noises picked up by the carrier wave become audible sounds in the receiver, interfering with perfect reception.

With the new device only the modulated sound frequencies are broadcast and these, according to the college scientists, are devoid of the carrier wave tendency to pick up extraneous noises.

Sending efficiency is increased, tuning is made more selective at the receiver because of the sharper deployment and much greater distance may be covered.

WORKING BOYS SEE GREAT MAGICIAN

If the magic of Howard Thurston doesn't help get him into Heaven probably the prayers of the 150 bright boys at the Working Boys' Home in Newton Highlands will.

It's a safe bet that the "King of Magic" will be remembered in these husky boys' prayers for many a night as a result of the happiness he gave them at the Home by special arrangement with the Boston American.

Not only did the famous magician, who is playing at the Schubert Theatre, give the boys a wonderful entertainment, but he also left a $10 bill to help the Working Boys' Home baseball team. The boys all voted Thurston "a regular feller" and also agreed that his charming wife is one of the loveliest women that ever visited the Home.

At the conclusion of the show Mr. Thurston said the Working Boys' Home boys are the snappiest crowd of youngsters he has ever come in contact with. The boys laughed and shouted themselves hoarse during the course of Thurston's show.

"I believe that Brother Raphael has a lot of cards up his sleeve," said Mr. Thurston, as he began his entertainment. Brother Raphael stepped up and sure enough the magician found more than a pack of playing cards in his sleeve.

Next the magician found a nest in Brother Felix's nose and pulled a rabbit from under the coat collar of an intelligent youngster in the audience. Later he pulled a big white goose from under the coat of Brother Benignus, besides doing numerous other stunts.

As guest of the American Mr. Thurston will entertain the kiddies at the Children's Hospital next Monday afternoon.

ROB THE CASTLE IN LEXINGTON OF $4,000

"The Castle," Lexington home of the Hallie C. Blakes, was entered early today by a lone burglar who collected about $4,000 in cash and jewelry while the family slept.

Mrs. Blake discovered the burglary today after the men of the family had gone to town.

Entrance was gained through a window in the houseman's quarters on the basement floor. An iron grating was removed and the window pried up.

In the bedroom where Mr. and Mrs. Blake were sleeping the prowler took $60 in cash from Mrs. Blake's purse and four breastpins set in diamonds, sapphires, pearls and rubies.

From a den adjoining the bedroom of Kenneth Blake, a son, the burglar took nine stickpins. A trail of matches on the stairway and footprints on the soft ground were the only marks left behind.

METHODISTS IN FIGHT OVER MODERNISTS

Fundamentalists Strongly Protest Proposed Changes in Courses for Ministers

Springfield, May 10.—A plea for the admission to this country and to American citizenship of all peoples, "regardless of race, color or nationality, was approved by the Methodist Episcopal general conference here today.

"We deplore as unpatriotic and unchristian," the resolution read, "the movements in many sections that discriminate against and humiliate aliens and that single out certain races and religious groups for discriminatory and unfriendly treatment."

Springfield, May 10 (I.N.S.)—Fundamentalists among the delegates at the general conferences of the Methodist Church are staging a warm fight against plans of the liberal group for changes in the courses of study prescribed in preparation for the ministry.

Bishops have long favored changes and a special commission will make a report at the conference as a result of long study of the question. Dr. David G. Downey of New York, editor of the Methodist Book Review, is a member of the commission and a leader in the plan.

Changes that are in line with modernist thought in religion are contemplated through the proposed revision.

Judge Henry Wade Rogers of the Circuit Court of New York is preparing a report to be submitted to the conference on the advisability of limiting the term of office of bishops to eight years. Judge Rogers is chairman of the judiciary committee of the conference.

If the term of office is limited, a place will be given for many new bishops to take the places of veteran churchmen now holding office.

The Conference adopted a resolution calling for action by Congress to strengthen the prohibition law enforcement agencies by placing the agents under Civil Service. The resolution also calls for the passage of a law to provide for deportation of aliens upon a second conviction for violations of the liquor and narcotic laws.

A resolution whose preamble condemned the practice of lynching was passed by the conference.

The resolution called for the appointment of a committee to present the conference's attitude on the three anti-lynching bills now before Congress, to President Coolidge, the president of the Senate and the speaker of the House.

"The demand was so great," he said, "that most of the stands and newsboys sold out after two hours. I also wish to state that the new weekly's sale of this week's issue is greater boston was larger than any magazine in history."

DAUGHTER BACK FROM 'GRAVE,' JOINS FATHER

Lynn Man Finds Child He Paid Burial Bill for 18 Years Ago Alive

Eighteen years after paying an undertaker's bill for the "burial" of his only daughter, Chester A. Brown of No. 84A Washington street, Lynn, is reunited with the young woman on a farm at East Lancester, N. H.

The girl, who was Hazel Brown, is now Mrs. Leon D. Smith, happy and healthy mother of nine little Smiths.

"And I am ten time happier than I ever expected to be," says Grandpa Brown.

When Brown was employed twenty-three years ago in Oxford, Me., his wife died and he was left alone with little Hazel, a girl of twelve.

TOLD OF DEATH.

The child was placed with a family in Jefferson, N. H., while the father obtained work in Boston. From time to time he sent money to New Hampshire to pay for the little girl's board.

Six months four years later, he met a woman from Lancaster, who told him of Hazel's "death." Two days later the woman to whom he had entrusted the girl, and who has since died, sent him the undertaker's bill for $47.50.

Brown sent the money to Lancaster where the family now resided, and almost immediately became a rover.

He worked on building jobs in all parts of North and South America, and not long ago pulled up in Miami, Fla. There, on the occasion of a State's Day parade, the mention of Maine and New Hampshire brought Mr. Brown into conversation with a man from Lancaster, N. H.

HEARS OF CHILD.

"Lancaster!" said Brown, "I used to know that town."

"Is that so?" replied the man from Lancaster, "that's funny. I know a girl of your name up there who is the very picture of you."

"Yes," inquired Brown, only mildly interested because the Brown girl he loved had been dead eighteen years.

"Yes," affirmed the man from Lancaster, "Hazel Brown."

Brown came back to Boston, settled in Lynn and "took a chance" by writing a letter to "Miss Hazel Brown, Lancaster, N. H."

The letter came back to him.

Then he wrote to the Postmaster, who replied that Hazel Brown was now Mrs. Smith.

Brown carried to Lancaster with him the undertaker's receipt of eighteen years ago. If it was intended to be evidence of his truth and sincerity, it really was not necessary, for Hazel and her children took to grandfather at once.

ARREST WAR VET WHO AIDED LITTLE GIRL

William Zintell, twenty-nine-year-old war veteran, came to Boston from Connecticut looking for work.

Zintell was resting in Boston Common when he saw an eight-year-old girl crying. He bought the girl something to eat and took her home. The girl was dissatisfied with home conditions and left again following Zintell. He took her to a priest and later to the Harrison home. The girl's mother gave the police a description of Zintell and he was arrested in Scollay Square. Police today investigated Zintell's story and found it true. The girl says she was not harmed.

The board's survey was based on statistics furnished by eighty cities. Articles on which the largest increases were recorded include women's velvet hats, women's knit vests and percale.

WOMAN IGNORED CAUSE OF BOY KIDNAPING

Joplin, Mo., May 10.—A woman's desire to avenge a blighted love and to blackmail the man who spurned her was the motive behind the kidnaping of Freddie Leib at Quincy, Ill., fifty-three years ago, according to the statement here of a man known as Robert T. Clark, fifty-eight, who declared he has established his identity as the long-lost Freddie.

He claims to be the son of Professor W. H. Leib, widely known music master, who died less than a year ago, after having spent a life time and depleted his income in vain efforts to find his son.

Clark has been a steel worker at Croydon, Pa.

He said he was taken from his home by a woman, the hireling of a wealthy woman who had once loved his father and had sought revenge against his mother. He also declared that the woman sought to blackmail his father after the kidnaping by attempting to brand him as the father of a child born out of wedlock.

The woman alleged to have kidnaped him, Clark said, resides in the East. He refused to disclose her name. He said he has obtained her name and the names of several other persons, accessories to the crime.

Clark claims to have been accepted by the music professor's daughter, Mrs. Bessie Sutherland, and a son, as their brother. He bears a resemblance to Professor Leib.

ONE DYING, TWO HURT, WHEN AUTOS CRASH

Lawrence, May 10.—One man is dying and two others are seriously injured as the result of being hit by an automobile, operated by Charles M. Simpson of No. 368 Riverway, Boston, which, following a crash, bounced from the street over the sidewalk on which the three victims were walking.

George Kelley, thirty-four, is the man fatally injured. He is in Lawrence General Hospital with Bernard Thompson, seventeen, and William Bimmel, twenty-two, who are expected to recover.

Simpson's car and a car operated by Paul Pippino of No. 18 North street, Methuen, came together at Park and Lawrence streets with such force that spectators say Simpson's machine bounced from the street to the sidewalk.

The three injured pedestrians, all of Lawrence, were knocked down and run over. Others on the sidewalk had time to scurry to safety.

HANGMAN IS PROUD OF JOB; FEE $300

Man Who Executed Six Says He Needs Money to Educate Daughter

New Orleans, May 10 (I.N.S.)—Hanging convicted criminals is a good job—with plenty of money in it, if there are enough of them—provided the man who shoots his victims into eternity has sufficient nerve and skill, and holds no compunctions over taking a human life.

So spoke the mysterious hangman who yesterday afternoon dropped six Italians through the gallows at Amite, La., and then boastfully characterized his day's work as "perfect."

The little man, gray and slightly stooping under the weight of sixty-one years, gave an account of experiences he encountered during the execution of his gruesome work. Not until he was assured that his identity would be concealed, however, would he be approached.

$300 FOR DAY'S WORK.

"If the law requires hanging," he said, "some one must do it. I have $300 in my pocket from yesterday's work and $50 a head is pretty fair money, considering the speedy fashion in which I get it over with.

"Then it takes skill to hang in the right way. Easiest thing in the world to bungle a job and let your man struggle to death. That's a thing I can't stand.

"And nerve—well, it takes a lot of it. I almost lost my nerve yesterday for the first time when I hanged Andrea Lomantia after he had stabbed himself. When they brought his unconscious form up the gallows stairs I felt like running away, and I almost did it.

"But I thought to myself, the sooner I get that poor devil out of his misery the better off he'll be, so I rushed the job up.

"And I did it well, too, didn't I? Broke his neck and he felt nothing."

HAS HANGED SIXTEEN.

The hangman never looks at his victim after they have taken their death plunge. Although he reluctantly admitted he has taken the lives of some eighty men he has never seen one dangling at the end of the rope which he has so carefully prepared.

"Did you see the way some of the witnesses stared at me while I was working and tried to see enough of my face under my mask to find out who I really was? Couldn't keep my mind on my work. They ought not to do it.

PRIDE IN HIS JOB.

"The hangman seemed to take the greatest pride in doing his jobs without bungling them, and confessed that "hanging is an art."

"But now that you why I really hang these devils," he added voluntarily, "I have a little home here in New Orleans and in that home I have a wife and daughter.

"I'm trying to give the daughter an education in music, and want her to be cultured and refined.

"In my regular profession as a carpenter I don't make enough money to give her these things, so when the authorities ask me to don my black mask and do some more of their work I cannot refuse.

"If my family ever found out it would kill me."

GIRLS, A "JOLIE BOB" IS THE VERY LATEST!

"Split Shingle" Idea From Paris the Rage in Feminine Hairdressing

Oh girls!

Here's a new one—the split shingle.

Scatter the curls these days!

Take a comb and run it down the middle of the back hair and voila!

It's French. Paris first used the split shingle.

Some dainty Parisiennes visited Boston and were greatly distressed because nobody knew how to cut them their "jolie" bob. Finally they found one man who knew.

He, Rudolph Mertin of No. 453 Washington street, had the secret of the "jolie" bob. The little French ladies had their hair cut as satisfactorily as in their own most satisfactory Paris and the "split shingle" came to Boston to stay.

The shingle is the most popular haircut yet contrived, and the split shingle promises to become the most popular variation. The split shingle originated with a man's haircut.

Forty years ago it was fashionable for the dandies of the day to wear their hair full, slightly waved in the back and parted down the middle to the neck.

The basis of the split shingle is just that haircut of decades ago. Mildly a tresses are trimmed to a point at the nape of the neck, waved in alluring curves and then parted from the centre of the top of the head to edge of the hair at the neck.

Then a brush sweeps the two sides of the hair flat from the part in the middle and the split shingle is accomplished. But it isn't every head of hair that can wear it. You have to study your shingle before you adopt the new style, and if you can't wear it becomingly, don't, because nowadays there's a "dress" for every head.

SPLIT SHINGLE HERE, LATEST IN 'BOBS'

FLORENCE KEEFE

Florence, a Boston girl, is having a split shingle, otherwise known as the "Jolie Bob." It is the latest way of "doing" the hair.

VIRGIN ISLANDS DRY DOCK COLLAPSES

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, May 10.—The floating dock here collapsed today while the American steamer Catherine, a 2,100-ton vessel, was in it. The dock is badly listed and the engine house is partly submerged.

E. A. GROZIER, PUBLISHER OF POST, DIES

Veteran Newspaper Owner Passes Away at His Home in Cambridge in 66th Year

Edwin A. Grozier, who became editor, publisher and chief proprietor of the Boston Post thirty-three years ago and built it into one of the conspicuously successful newspaper enterprises of the United States, lies dead at his home, No. 168 Brattle street, Cambridge, after a long illness. He was in his sixty-fifth year.

Mr. Grozier's last work as a newspaper man, almost his last act in life, was the writing of an editorial strongly eulogistic of President Coolidge.

He had just completed his correspondence when suddenly he collapsed and he was beyond human aid when doctors, hurriedly summoned, reached the house.

For many years Mr. Grozier had looked upon Provincetown as his real home, and there, on Sunday, at the tip end of the Cape, his body will be returned to earth.

SERVICES AT HOME.

A quiet and simple funeral service will be conducted at the Grozier residence in Cambridge on Sunday by the Rev. R. Perry Bush, pastor of the Universalist Church of the Redeemer, Chelsea.

The surviving relatives are Mrs. Grozier, who was Miss Alice C. Goodell, daughter of a prominent Salem family; a son, Richard Grozier, for some time assistant to his father as editor and publisher of the Post; one daughter, Mrs. Eliot Farley, of Channing street, Cambridge; two grandchildren, the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Farley, and two brothers, Joshua, an attorney of Denver, Col., and William A. Grozier, business manager of the Post.

BORN IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Mr. Grozier's father, a Cape Cod man, was the master of a clipper which piled around the Horn from New York to San Francisco, and it was on one of these voyages that Edwin Atkins Grozier came into the world in San Francisco Bay.

True son of "The Cape," directly descended from one of the Mayflower families, the early life of the future editor was spent in Provincetown. He attended the public schools there and was graduated from Provincetown High School when 15 years old.

B. U. GRADUATE.

He was graduated from Boston University with the class of 1881 and immediately plunged into newspaper work. Previously he had made himself an expert shorthand reporter. His first employment was with the Globe, and after some time on that newspaper he went to the Herald.

The famous Butler-Robinson campaign was on and Mr. Grozier covered the speeches of the Honorable George D. Robinson, the Republican candidate, who was so struck with the intelligent reporting of his speeches that when elected he asked the young Herald reporter to serve as his private secretary.

Mr. Grozier served in that capacity for a year and a half. Then Joseph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World, offered him a position as private secretary.

BECAME EDITOR.

Mr. Pulitzer, having tested his metal, made the young man first city editor and then editor-in-chief of the Evening World and the Sunday World, extraordinarily important positions for so young a man.

In 1891 Mr. Grozier came to Boston on vacation, heard that the Post was on the verge of bankruptcy and almost on the spur of the moment decided to buy.

When the necessary papers were passed the young editor had exactly $100 in cash. The paper had less than 3,000 subscribers. It was losing $2,500 a week and a debt of $100,000 accumulated upon it.

The rise of the Post was no sudden leap. Its rivals were well entrenched and prosperous. Years of adversity passed before Mr. Grozier could see the light of success.

HAVERHILL FIRE CAUSED BY CIGARET

Haverhill, May 10.—The Whittier land Dance Hall on the Amesbury road burned to the ground about 3 o'clock this morning. The loss is $15,000. A lighted cigarette, left by a dancer, is believed to have caused the fire.

George Ramsey, the proprietor, closed the hall after midnight and took the orchestra that was playing there to Boston.

A passing autoist saw the fire and gave the alarm, but the building was doomed before they could be of service.

Ramsey left considerable cash in the building, much of it in silver. After the fire had been extinguished this morning he went over the ruins and found his silver, some of it melted.

200 CUBAN REBELS GIVE UP FIGHT

Washington, May 10 (I.N.S.).—The seditious movement in Cuba has practically ended "with the surrender of more than 200 rebels," the Cuban embassy announced today on the basis of official advices from Havana.

The embassy denied reports of persecution of American citizens in the Isle of Pines. The reports originated through the conviction of Charles F. Fetzer, an American citizen, for violation of the sanitary regulations. He was pardoned and released.

One of Six Executed Stabbed Himself 27 Times

New Orleans, May 10.—Andrea Lamantia, one of six Italians hanged yesterday at Amite, stabbed himself twenty-seven times, when he attempted to commit suicide just before the execution.

Preparations for the disposition of the bodies of the six men were under way today.

The bodies of Lamantia, Joseph Giglio, Roy Leona and Joseph Bochio arrived here and before a crowd were removed to an undertaking establishment. Those of Joseph Ripi and Natale Deamore were taken to Hammond, the former to be sent to Chicago and the latter to be sent here.

Lamantia's, Giglio's and Leona's bodies will be sent to Brooklyn, N. Y. Bochio, whose former home was in Chicago, will be buried here tomorrow.

AUTO BANDITS STEAL $25,000 FROM MAILS

Gang of Seven Hold Up East Chicago Office and Escape in Auto

Chicago, May 10.—Seven automobile bandits who held up the East Chicago, Ind., postoffice, escaped with between $25,000 and $50,000. The money was being shipped by registered mail from the Federal Reserve Bank here to the United States National Bank of Indiana Harbor at East Chicago.

Hammond, Ind., May 10.—Seven automobile bandits held up the East Chicago, Ind., postoffice at Indiana Harbor today and fled with four pouches of registered mail.

The bandits followed a taxicab from the Pennsylvania Railroad station to the postoffice and held up five employes as they were receiving the pouches. They selected the four registered mail sacks from fifteen other pouches.

Although the value of the contents of the sacks was not disclosed, Harry Spencer, postmaster of East Chicago, denied they contained payroll money for the big Calumet region industries. It was reported, however, that the Republic Iron and Steel Company had a payroll due today.

Salem Athlete Runs Amuck and Fires Gun in Air

Salem, May 10.—John Jennings, twenty-six years old, former Salem High School football star, ran amuck in Town House square today, flourishing a revolver. He fired the weapon into the air.

At the police station he declared that he was out to "get" Michael L. Sullivan, a well known Salem character.

He runs the courts, the city and everything around here," Jennings told the police. "He shouldn't be allowed to live so I set out to kill him."

Jennings was held for observation.

FIVE LEAP OUT WINDOW AS HOME BURNS

Bedford Mother and Her Four Children, Trapped by Fire, Have Narrow Escape

Lexington, May 10.—The family of William Kelley, a farmer residing on Hartwell road, Bedford, were forced to jump from their bedroom windows today, when fire destroyed the Kelley home.

The farm house was a one and a half story structure, with sleeping rooms on the first floor.

Kelley was aroused by the smoke.

When he opened a door leading to the dining room, a wall of flame greeted him. He ran outside to sound the alarm. Mrs. Kelley and the four Kelley children were aroused by the father's shouts. So rapidly did the fire spread they had no time to dress.

Movie Men to Hold Convention Here

The annual convention of the motion picture theatre owners of America will be held at the Copley-Plaza on May 27, 28 and 29. Mayor Curley is expected to open the meeting, and before its close several golden keys to the city will be properly distributed.

Stage and Screen

Boston American Orchestra Steps Out

Conductor William F. Dodge will lead the Boston American Orchestra to Providence next week to broadcast two programs through WEAN at the Armory Radio Exhibit. The concerts will be given at 8 o'clock in the evening on Monday, May 12th, and on Thursday, May 15th.

SINNERS NOT ALL IN WORLD OF STAGE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IT is a fair assumption that sinners belong to every race and to every profession. They flourish here and there on no set plan of operation and they brush elbows with you six days in every week—sometimes on Sundays, lifting the score to seven days. But it is not claimed that any particular branch of human endeavor holds a complete monopoly on sinful living which brings us back to the words of a distinguished preacher who only a week ago, in a sermon burning with eloquence, slapped a heavy share of the world's sin upon the theatre. It made great reading in the Monday morning papers, but raised not even a mild, tittering hooray from Howard Thurston, the magician, who is very much a part of the theatre—and is no sinner. Likewise Mr. Thurston rises to remark that someone has been feeding one of our popular clergymen on defective information.

IT was not easy to catch up with the elusive Thurston, for between his daily trips to children's hospitals and orphanages, where he draws a bit of pleasure to himself by scattering sunshine and happiness among darkened little lives, he keeps an important engagement with a physician who is expected to bring back some of the magician's waning strength. I doubt if you could persuade the hundreds of crippled children he has made gloriously happy that Thurston is a sinner—yet he belongs to the theatre. Extracting rabbits from a silk hat may not add much to the nation's grandeur, but it brings sure fire gladness to unhappy tots lying in hospital wards. And that is how Thurston spends his afternoons. Children gather queer impressions, but there are several hundred in Boston who will tell you vigorously that Thurston is not a bad man—and children have a great faculty of shooting straight in matters involving their friends.

* * *

Mr. Thurston pulls toys (not gloves) out of a two-quart hat.

A KINDLY, physician held up the examination of his patient long enough to let Thurston speak words of defence for his theatre. "Ministers are sometimes wrong in their deductions," he began. "I know, because I studied for the ministry as a young man right here in Massachusetts at the school in Northfield founded and directed by that great Christian, Dwight L. Moody. Incidentally, I married a minister's sister, so I ought to know that occasionally they get off to a false start on subjects with which they are not entirely familiar. Ministers are all right—dozens of them are my personal friends—but the stage is not all wrong. It is just average in its Christian standards, like any other profession, such as law, medicine or journalism. But in Christian charity the theatre tops all professions, for it gives its talents freely at every call for assistance."

"Don't forget the doctor," interrupted the physician, with one eye on his watch and his fingers at the magician's pulse. "He, too answers many profitless calls."

"That's right," agreed Thurston. "The actor and the doctor—the world's greatest givers in charity. I suppose there must be a few sinners among our doctors, too, but you don't hear so much about it from the pulpits. How about that, Doc?"

"You confuse me, but I may as well admit that we are just average, like actors."

EASY MARKS, OR THE MEN WHO GIVE, ARE WORLD'S MOST USEFUL CITIZENS.

THURSTON sped on. "I have found in thirty or more years of experience on the stage that men are divided into three classes—Wise Guys, Easy Marks and Meddlers. The Wise Guy is the man who believes the world owes him a living and steps right out to get it. He is selfish, has no genuine human emotions and on the whole does not contribute much to the glory of his country. The Easy Mark, my second type, is a chap who feels that he is darned lucky to be alive, who is glad he is here, takes things easy and does the best he can with the talents God has given him. He is always the 'Patsey' when something needs to be done or something needs to be given, for he does his bit good naturedly and gives up at every demand—and likes it. Fortunately the world is full of Easy Marks—who give and give, with no hope of reward. You'll find the Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary clubs made up of Easy Marks—that's why they are great organizations. And you are in on this, Doc. How many operations have you done, and how many patients have you attended without expecting a penny for your service? Doctors are among our best Easy Marks."

* * *

THE physician fidgeted in embarrassed enjoyment at the tribute. "That brings me to the third group, the Meddler," went on the magician. "He's a wonderful fellow, has the exact cure for every evil, but it's his own concoction. Your plan is never right; you must accept his private brand of cure. If he doesn't like the theatre everybody else must give it up. He and he alone knows what is good for the world, and if you don't agree with him—well, you might just as well admit at once you deserve to be hanged for horse stealing, even if you have never seen a horse.

"But as long as we have Easy Marks the world is going to be a pretty good place in which to spend a span of life. I am glad nature fitted me for that class, and I expect to play a prominent role for some years to come. If the man who believes the theatre is headquarters for sin could tell the difference at sight between Wise Guys, Easy Marks and Meddlers he would have a splendid awakening, and if he had wisdom he would immediately pass along his application for membership in the Brotherhood of Easy Marks."

Upon which declaration Dr. Koch conducted all visitors to the door and turned his exclusive attention to the world's best magician.

LURID DRAMA ONCE HELD OUR MARY

If fresh amplification of the truth that America is the land of opportunity were needed, it is certainly furnished in the career of Mary Pickford. To make the statement that "Our Mary" is one of the wealthiest women in the country would surprise some people, but it is an old story in the world of picture plays. And yet it does not seem so long ago, for Mistress Mary is still a really young woman, that even comparative comforts were out of her reach.

Mary Pickford was born in Toronto. There is no question that the Pickford family was poor, and so, when Mary's mother learned that the Valentine Stock Company, then playing in Toronto, was in need of a youngster for a child part in one of its plays, she persuaded the manager to engage her daughter. Mary was five years old at the time.

Mary was a slight, slender, almost gaunky youngster at twelve when Belasco engaged her for one of the children in "The Warrens of Virginia." That was her real beginning as an artist of the stage.

She was born in Toronto and once toyed with melodrama at ten, twenty and thirty. Now she's the richest woman in the old U. S. A.

AUTHOR FACES ANNOYING PROBLEM

How would you like to write a play, then, seeing it performed in the theatre, be unable to understand a word of it. That is what happened to Lajos Biro who wrote "The Highwayman" in which Joseph Schildkraut is appearing at the Majestic Theatre.

Mr. Biro, who witnessed his play in English for the first time the other night at the Majestic, is a Hungarian and his play originally was played in that language in Vienna. The author who only recently arrived in this country ran over from New York to see "The Highwayman."

When Charles Hede, manager of the company, realized that Mr. Biro could not understand the play he called Miss Gladys Unger, who made the English adaptation and she came to the theatre and explained to the Continental author various lines in which he was told to note especially the changes she had made from the original.

Mr. Biro, who is an important personage in European Continental theatricals, has come to America to look at two of his plays, "The Highwayman" and "The Moon Flower."

Another of Biro's plays, "The Yellow Lily," for which Mr. Schildkraut has the American rights, likely will be performed by the young actor under the supervision of Lester Bryant.

Pretty Chinese Girl in "Thief of Bagdad"

Many nationalities are represented in Douglas Fairbanks' newest and greatest picture, "The Thief of Bagdad," now at the Colonial. Among the principals is Anna May Wong. She is an American, Irishmen, Englishmen, Spanish, Chinese and negress. Not the least interesting of the principals is Anna May Wong. She is seen as the Mongol slave, a sort of Chinese flapper, who betrays her mistress, the Princess, to the Mongol Prince. Anna May Wong's right name is Wong Liw Song and means Two Yellow Willows. Her father, Sing Lee Wong, is a Chinese scholar and merchant who brought Anna May to California when she was a wee tot. The family settled in Los Angeles and prospered. Anna May, when the time came, went to the English school and eventually graduated from the Santa Monica High School.

While in her teens she was a good deal of a picture fan and so, in course of time, she drifted to the studios in Hollywood and eventually got a chance as an extra girl.

HIGH TRIBUTE FOR LOWELL THOMAS

Allenby Pictures Draw Praise From Distinguished Men

During the two years that he has been the pastor at Tremont Temple, Dr. Massee has steadfastly refused to pass any comment from the pulpit on the various motion picture productions that have appeared in the Temple. But the other night he, voluntarily made an exception to this rule and in an address before 2,000 people he denounced the theatre and all of its works and then added that he did not think motion pictures, so long as they were not sex-problem plays, were harmful.

"In fact," said Dr. Massee, "I saw and heard 'With Allenby in Palestine and Arabia' here at Tremont Temple the other night and time and again I was stirred to the very depths of my soul. This historical production which takes us on the 'Last Crusade' is no ordinary film. It is educational and enthralling and should be seen by everyone."

Lowell Thomas' production has been praised by clergymen in every part of the world. Cardinal O'Connell was present at Tremont Temple a day or two ago and said that he had never seen more marvellous pictures. He also praised Lowell Thomas as a speaker.

First Pop Sunday Bill Will Be Russian

The opening week of the Pop Concerts at Symphony Hall has been brilliant, crowded and in every way auspicious of a records thirty-ninth season. Agide Jacchia and the Pops Orchestra of eighty Symphony players have added certain new numbers to the Pop repertoire which have already taken an undisputed place beside the old favorites. The usual atmosphere of sociability and accompaniment of refreshments make the Pops an institution which is as unique as it is thoroughly delightful.

Tomorrow night will bring the first Sunday concert of the Pops season with the following Russian program:

Entrance of Antony, "A Night in Egypt".....Arensky
Dance of the Birds.....Borowoprokhan
Eight Russian Popular Melodies.....Rimsky-Korsakow
Kamarinskaya.....Glinka-Lauder
Overture Solennelle, "1812".....Tchaikowsky
Festival Shepherds.....Kalinnikow
The Lark.....Glinka-Balakirew
Dances, "Prince Igor".....Borodin
Hebrew Dance.....Bergman
Procession of the Sardar.....Ippolitov Ivanov

There is much speculation in motion picture circles as to what actor will be selected for the title role in "Captain Blood," Rafael Sabatini's romance of the Spanish Main, which David Smith will produce for Vitagraph.

Leeta Corder Goes Back to Woods and Stream

Leeta Corder of the Somerville Theatre Players, somewhat reluctantly admits that to her the closing of the season means the realization of a longing which at this time of the year she finds impossible to shake off. Having been born in Texas, it is only natural that she should be proficient with the gun and rod. As soon as the season is over she flies herself off to some secluded spot and gets close to mother nature. After Miss Corder has polished her duties in the camp kitchen, for it should be known that she is a thorough camper, she tramps through the woods for miles and rarely returns without some evidence of her prowess with the rifle.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

PLYMOUTH—Mrs. Fiske in "Helena's Boys," a comedy by Ida Lublenski Ehrlich, adapted from a short story by Mary Brecht Pulver. A character comedy in which a mother, by adroit and highly diverting methods, forces wisdom into the minds and hearts of her sons.

* * *

FENWAY—(Opening today.) Betty Compson in "Miami," a photoplay of society life in Florida, with the star engaged in sensational exploits that rival a Fairbanks at his best. In the cast with Miss Compson are Lawford Davidson, Hedda Hopper, J. Barney Sherry, Lucy Fox and Benjamin F. Finney, Jr. Other features, including a comedy reel and Carmela Ippolito, a violinist.

* * *

WILBUR—(Beginning Thursday.) Fay Bainter in "The Dream Girl," a new musical play with music by Victor Herbert and book by Rida Johnson Young. Featured with Miss Bainter is Walter Woolf. Produced by the Shuberts.

* * *

SOMERVILLE—"The Love Test," a romantic play, drawing upon Bernard Nedell and Leeta Corder for their best efforts in the leading roles. Marks the closing of the season at this busy and popular playhouse. Other players to be seen in good parts are William Joffrey, Mabel Colcord, Phil Sheffield, Darry Welford and Frank Thomas.

* * *

JAMES—"In Love With Love," a comedy by Vincent Lawrence, first seen here earlier in the season at the Wilbur.

Casino Turns from Burlesque to Pictures
The week ahead will bring a new policy to Charlie Waldron's Casino Theatre. The burlesque season having faded into nothing at all on Hanover street, the Casino will take its turn at pictures, presenting a double feature bill, with two weekly changes in the program.

Hard-Boiled Judge Appears as Humorist
Judge I. Albert Brackett, the terror of evil doers drawn into the Roxbury Court, stepped into the spotlight as the principal speaker at the dinner given Joseph P. Cook, manager of the Hollis. If the judge used the same method in Roxbury his prisoners would go to jail laughing.

BETTY TAKES DESPERATE CHANCE

Miss Compson Doesn't Swim, but the Sea Has No Terrors

During the filming of "Miami," the society drama which opens today at the Fenway Theatre, Betty Compson set a pace that few stars will try to match. This one opening scene of this picturization of John Lynch's story called for Betty to ride at 40 miles an hour while dangling in the hollow wake of a speed boat traveling forty miles an hour. This is where the author has it on the star. All he has to do is to think up stunts. The star has to do them.

Betty can't swim a stroke. Having been one of the original Hollywood "bathing beauties," she was never allowed to go near the water. Obviously, the only thing to do was to engage a double. This was done, but Betty was far from satisfied with the result.

Betty mounted the aquaplane, thirty feet of line was payed out, and a lifesaver was hidden in the speed boat so that he might attempt to save her in case of accident. Needless to say, Betty went through with it.

Born in Dressing Room, Now She's a Stage Director

Born in the dressing room of a theatre in Cincinnati and recognized as one of the most proficient of the few women stage managers of the country is the proud boast of Alta Dalton, one of the principal members of "The Unwanted Child" company, at the Arlington Theatre. While Miss Dalton lends invaluable assistance to this play she also assumes authority "back stage." Miss Dalton is the daughter of the late E. R. Dalton, for many years a Shakespearean actor, and who dropped dead on the stage in 1905 while playing in "Ingomar." Miss Dalton's first theatrical appearance was made when a child in New Orleans, in the role of a boy in "Rosedale." Her parents placed her in the St. Mary Convent in Terre Haute, Ind., and upon her graduation she signed a contract with David Belasco, who assigned her to an important part in "The Girl of the Golden West."

COSTLY FILM IN BILL AT MODERN

Cosmopolitan's "Under the Red Robe" Opens Tomorrow

Romance will hold sway next week at the Modern and Beacon Theatres through the presentation of the $1,500,000 Cosmopolitan Production, "Under the Red Robe," made from Stanley Weyman's novel, and "The Shadows of the East," a picturization of E. M. Hull's novel of the Orient.

Mr. Weyman's romance of old France is a thrilling story of affairs in the court at the period of Cardinal Richelieu's rule. It is a tale of intrigue and lively incident in the days when romance was at its height. A cast of players of first distinction are seen in the leading roles.

E. M. Hull, who won fame as writer of "The Sheik," has written another fascinating romance with a colorful plot of desert life with an Algerian chief as a love pirate.

Orpheum Frolics Give Joy to Victor Morris

Victor Hyde

Victor J. Morris, manager of Loew's Orpheum Theatre, is rejoicing in the fact that the coming week will see the realization of one of his own sweet dreams, the Orpheum Minstrel Frolic. After several weeks of strenuous rehearsals, under the guidance of Victor Hyde, this musical offering, comprising a cast of sixty Boston boys and girls, seems destined to excel the earlier offerings presented by both Mr. Hyde and Mr. Morris.

FILM FACTS

"Counterfeit" is the temporary title of Colleen Moore's next picture to follow "The Perfect Flapper." Conway Tearle will be co-featured. Le Roy Scott, one of the best known American authors, who has given the screen "Partners of the Night" and "The Night Rose," wrote "Counterfeit" as a novelette.

* * *

The beginning of "The End of the World" commenced six weeks ago, said Jack Pickford, "but the end did not come until early this week at Carmel by the Sea." All of which is Jack's naive way of saying that the ending he had written for his new photoplay, entitled "The End of the World."

Dr. Massee said in his address at Tremont Temple last Sunday: "I saw and heard 'With Allenby in Palestine and Arabia' here at the Tremont the other night and time and again I was stirred to the very depths of my soul. This historical production, which takes us on the 'Last Crusade,' is no ordinary film. It is educational and enthralling and should be seen by everyone."
Lowell Thomas's production has been praised by every clergyman in every part of the world. Cardinal O'Connell saw it at Tremont Temple a few days ago and said that he had never seen more marvelous pictures. He also praised Lowell Thomas as a speaker.

WIRING IS EASY FOR THE AMERICAN SUPERFLEX SET

BEST WAY TO PLACE THE PARTS

By M. A. SIMMONS.

Having carried you through the preliminaries of the Boston American Super-Amplidyne-Neutro-Radiex, we now come to the actual wiring of the parts.

The diagram shown indicates the wiring for the baseboard model, but it applies in a less exact fashion to the panel mount.

The crystal detector can be mounted in most any position. The best results will probably be obtained by mounting it directly on the post marked "P" on the audio transformer. The by-pass condenser may also be mounted directly on the transformer across the two secondary posts "G" and "A."

CRYSTAL ADJUSTMENT.

When the fixed crystal is used practically no adjustment is needed. They may, however, be adjusted by giving a sharp rap on the case. The writer has used a Boston manufactured fixed crystal and had absolutely no trouble with it. A Chicago made fixed crystal is also giving entire satisfaction.

These two fixed crystals are made particularly for reflex work. Sometimes when taken out of the box and placed in the set they refuse to work. This is easily fixed.

While it is in the set, simply tap it. This will generally do the trick. If, however, the crystal works when first put in the set, don't tap it for better adjustment. That will probably throw it out of adjustment.

WIRING THE SET.

Start with the antenna post and wire to the top post on the primary of No. 1 coil. From ground post wire to the bottom post on primary and then to the minus "A" battery post. From minus "A" battery post, wire to wire which connects "A" with "B" on audio transformer.

All audio transformers are not marked like the one shown in the diagram, but all are marked with G and P (grid and plate) or else they are marked with the full words. For "A" some transformers are marked FIL. B or "B" none are marked with a PLUS sign, they are marked with numbers, but diagrams furnished with the transformers will indicate which ones these are.

Continue this same wire to the minus filament post on the socket. Also from this same wire run a wire to the rotor of the second tuning condenser. (The one on the right.) From the "A" plus-"B" minus battery post, run a wire to one post of the rheostat. From the other post of the rheostat run a wire to the plus filament post of the socket.

This will complete your filament circuit and all grounded leads.

Now connect C1 across the minus filament lead and the grid post of the radio transformed. DON'T SOLDER to the condenser, but use screws to fasten the wires.

GRID POST CONNECTION.

From the grid post of the audio transformer run a wire to the rotor of the first tuning condenser. Mount one side of the crystal on the "P" post of the radio transformer, and from the other side of the crystal run a wire to the stator plates of the second tuning condenser.

From the stator plates of the first tuning condenser run a wire to the top of the primary on the second coil.

From the bottom of this same primary run a wire to one of the phone binding posts. From the other phone binding post run a wire to the "B" plus 90 volts binding post.

Now connect in the condenser C2 across the "B" plus 90 post and the bottom post of the second coil primary. This will complete the wiring with the exception of the secondary leads of the two coils.

Connect the top secondary lead to the rotor of the condenser in both cases. Connect the bottom secondary lead to the stator of condenser in both cases. This will complete all wiring.

SOME BRAGGING ABOUT 6-TUBE SET

We don't want to brag about the new six-tube sensation that is coming next week just as soon as the two-tube Superflex is finished with, but we can't help telling you in one of the following:

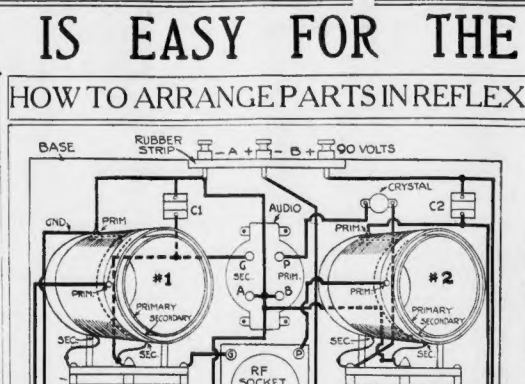
One prominent radio engineer—you all know him, but he asked us not to publish his name—calls it his "Waverly" set and uses the Pacific coast almost any time he wants it at his home in southern New Hampshire.

Another rooter picked up a station on the loud speaker with the set that he built last week. It turned out to be a tiny 20-watt (0.5 the power of WNAC) station in Illinois.

When the radio editor of this sheet first laid eyes on the set he had an attack of the dread logoes on the bogoes.

Six tubes, canned, 14½ inches long and 7¼ inches deep, using three dry cells for A battery, two major controls, light as a portable typewriter, and cheap to build.

HOW TO ARRANGE PARTS IN REFLEX



PHANTOM VIEW OF ONE TUBE MODEL

This is the most helpful diagram possible for wiring the American Superflex. Wherever the wiring is below any part it is shown in dotted lines. Note position of crystal, which should not be mounted directly in back of the panel, as it will make long leads.

Last Night On the Air

By THE LISTENER

A friend told me today that Martha Lee's morning talks from WNAC are making considerable of a dent in the affairs of our suburban households. He said that on several occasions lately he has "dined out," and the topic of conversation at the table usually is "Is this one of the 'Radio' dishes?"

I can easily understand why Martha Lee's talks are making such a hit. They are broadcast at an hour when the lady of the house is doing her morning work, and they embrace a subject every housewife is interested in.

Some of the men folks I know, whose sets are not equipped with loud speakers, have rigged up ear phones on an extra long cord, so their wives may wear them while doing the housework. They tell me it's a great stunt for keeping the wife in good humor.

Did you hear little Florence Bloom recite from WTAT last night? The little girl was certainly good, and credit is due announcer "JJC" for his aptitness in making her feel at home in front of "cold hearted Mike."

I believe "Mike" fright would be unknown if some of the announcers were more careful along these lines.

Every time it rains in my neighborhood I am troubled with interference from the street lighting wires. The trouble is seems is caused by the wires rubbing against limbs of trees, and wearing the insulation off. In dry weather the limbs are comparatively dry, and no noise is made. But when it rains, the wet limb acts like a ground.

At 845 something suddenly happened to the air. Distant stations started to come in one after the other, and the 400 meter code signals started to pound through so loud they interfered with various broadcast programs above 450 meters. If radio conditions are a sign of the weather overhead, I'll wager its going to clear up by tonight.

At 9:03 two ships, MUH GAYZ, San Nazario and San Felix, both British steamships, were exchanging position reports on 450 meters. Judging from the strength of the San Felix's signals, I would say he was pretty close to Cape Cod. He reported himself as bound from Quebec to Tampico, and gave his noon position as Latitude 35.52 and Longitude 63.52. This transmission gave up my reception of WEAF, WCAP, WJZ and WOO.

It was a good program put on by the New England Conservatory of Music orchestra at Jordan Hall, and broadcast through WNAC. I enjoyed best of the program the solo numbers by Miss Stickney, the cellist, and Miss Madden, pianist.

The orchestra was not up to fine, only in places where they played extra loud it was accompanied by an echo which detracted from the music. I am told by the broadcasters that Jordan Hall is a difficult place to broadcast from. They say the echo comes in over the radio, but does not seem to be noticeable in the hall itself.

At 9:30 tuned in on WEAF and heard some nice orchestra music by "The Astor Coffee Orchestra." At least that's what it sounded like from the announcer.

The static started in also at about this same time, with sharp little cracks which seemed ten times worse than all the static we have had for the past week.

NOW TO TRY OUT THE LITTLE BOMBSHELL

After you have finished wiring the new Boston American Superflex you are ready for the big thrill.

For tube insurance, it is a good idea to slip a Radeco tube fuse over the filament leg of the tube. This will not interfere with the connection of the set and may save a tube.

Connect "A" battery and turn rheostat to see if tube lights. Then connect the minus "B" battery lead to the same post as the plus "A" battery and finally connect the plus 90 "B" lead to the post. The phones should previously have been connected to their posts.

TUNE FOR LOCAL.

The best time to try the set is when a local station is going. For WNAC, set the dials at approximately 15, and vary the dials back and forth till you pick them up. If the set has been correctly made, you should get WNAC loud and clear.

If when turning the dials you notice a sort of a howl, you may not have the proper contact on the crystal. If readjustment of the crystal does not stop it, then take out C2.

The howl should positively stop now, but the volume will be cut down considerably. This indicates that the C2 condenser is too large for the audio transformer you have used.

Try out various capacities until you bring the volume up to maximum without a sign of a howl. The reason for this condenser capacity varying of different audio transformers is because all transformers do not have the same distributed capacity. The more capacity a transformer has the smaller will be the required value of C2.

TO ADD AMPLIFIER.

For those who want more volume, the phones may be replaced with the two input leads to a one or two-stage audio amplifier.

On tuning the set, you will find that the setting of No. 2 dial is not at all critical. No. 1 dial should be sharp in its tuning of the stations, if No. 1 dial is not sharp, you can be sure that you have reversed the leads of the secondary coil of No. 1 unit. Then turn them the other way around. This should fix it.

Next week, beginning Monday, we start on the two-tube Superflex. Much that we have said about the one tube applies also to the two tube. This includes the directions for trying out the set as above. Save all back copies of the American. The Circulation Department works so hard to get your subscription to you on time every day that they sometimes slip up on the back copies.

Radio Receiving Conditions Tonight

Radio receiving conditions tonight will be good from stations in the Eastern part of the country, as well as from stations in the far West. Because of a high barometric pressure in the Middle West, receiving conditions from that section will be poor.

SCORES FELLED BY AUTO GAS IN TUNNELS

Increased Traffic Due to the Strike of 3,200 Pittsburgh Carmen Chokes Tubes

Pittsburgh, May 10.—Scores of persons were overcome by automobile exhaust fumes in the Twin Liberty tunnels through the South Hills here today.

Increased traffic in the tunnels as an consequence of a strike of 3,200 street car motormen and conductors caused the tubes to become chocked with the gases. First aid crews of the United States Bureau of Mines and the city fire department were rushed to the scene.

The exact number of persons overcome was not known, but more than a score were sent to hospitals.

When the rescue men reached the tubes they donned oxygen helmets and went in. The tunnels were closed to all traffic and soon the rescuers were busy carrying out men and women who had collapsed.

They were given first aid treatment, and a number reported in a serious condition were sent to hospitals.

The tunnels form the main gateway into the city from five thickly populated suburbs. With the streetcars tied up, the tubes were crowded to capacity today.

When a traffic jam tied up many machines in the tubes, the drivers failed to shut off their motors and soon the tunnels were clouded with fumes. Virtually every occupant of the stalled machines was affected.

The Allegheny county commissioners, when advised of today's accident, ordered the tunnels closed.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company will resume street car service here on Monday morning, using men from other cities to replace 3,200 striking motormen and conductors. It was officially announced today.

COUPLE RIDE ACROSS COUNTRY IN OX TEAM

Middletown, Ct., May 10.—Success of a transcontinental trip in a Connecticut ox-drawn cart is made known in letters received from Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Berring, who left Colchester, near here, December 1, 1920, and arrived in Medford, Ore., April 17 last, the trip of over 3,000 miles consuming three years four months and sixteen days. The yoke of oxen, also a goose and dog which accompanied the outfit, all stood the trip well as did Mr. and Mrs. Berring. The couple first went to Florida and thence westward.

QUARTER-VOTE RIVALS MUST HAVE RECOUNT

The plan of Charles H. McGlue, chairman of the Democratic State committee, to attend the Democratic convention with only one-fourth vote was rudely shattered today. Secretary of State Cook announced that the recount in Lawrence, to have been called off by agreement between McGlue and his rival, James A. Donovan of Lawrence, would go through. McGlue and Donovan had agreed to attend the convention with one-fourth vote each.

LIQUOR AND 1 MAN SEIZED IN SCITUATE

Scituate, May 10.—Two liquor raids here today led to the seizure of seventy-two cases of liquor and the arrest of one man, Frank Scholl of Boston was arrested after two automobiles, alleged to have been owned by him, were searched in the Webster garage and found to contain fifty-four cases of liquor. He was later released in $1,000 bail. A barn on Meeting House road, in Egypt was raided and eighteen cases of liquor seized.

Extracts Needle Man Carried in Body for 14 Years

Leominster, May 9.—It's easy to see now why Ernest Metcalf was at least half right when he said he was on pins and needles during the past fourteen years.

Metcalf has just found the needle. It was half way between his hip and his knee, and Dr. James E. Grady extracted it.

Metcalf believes the needle was in him fourteen years ago when he underwent an operation.

Sharp pains in his leg and a small growth attracted his attention today and he went to Dr. Grady. The doctor opened the growth and out came the needle!

GILLETT BACKED BY COOLIDGE FOR SENATE

President Hopes to Prevent Political Crisis Over Bay State Contest

By PHILIP A. ORME.

Washington, May 10 (Universal).—The hand of the administration was stretched forth again in the interest of party harmony when President Coolidge signified his full approval of Speaker Frederick H. Gillett's entry into the Massachusetts Senatorial race.

Because of the present situation in the Bay State, Mr. Coolidge's endorsement of the Gillett candidacy means more than a personal compliment to an old political friend. The Administration hopes to avoid a scramble of Republican candidates for the dangerous honor of opposing Senator David I. Walsh, Progressive-Democrat, at the November polls. It hopes to prevent a party split which might hurt the President's cause in the home state primaries, and, by reflection, throughout the country.

Gillett's candidacy is related of much of its strength by the fact that while he is one of the best known Massachusetts figures, nationally speaking, he is no longer as well known in that state itself. His long absence from Common wealth affairs and intense application to legislative matters in Washington, account for that and he is particularly weak in the central and eastern portions of the state.

Opponents of the President's party profess to believe that his efforts at conciliation in his own state will go for naught. Neither Cashbow nor Dallinger can be "called off," they maintain.

Louis H. Coolidge Lauds Career of Gillett

Louis A. Coolidge, first candidate in the field for Republican nomination for United States Senate, issued a statement on the candidacy of Speaker Gillett. Mr. Coolidge said:

"Latest developments do not change the situation so far as I am concerned. I have a very high regard for Speaker Gillett, with whom I have enjoyed friendly association for many years.

"He has a had a long and creditable career which has brought him great distinction. Should he be elected he would make an admirable Senator. Should he not be elected, then he might well be appointed ambassador to the Court of St. James or given some other high diplomatic post."

UNFILLED STEEL ORDERS DECREASE

WANT 4,000 MEN FOR DRY NAVY

Recruiting for Big Fleet Is Under Way; Good Pay for Petty Officers

WANTED—Four thousand men to man Uncle Sam's Dry Navy, soon to be sent scouting for rum-runners from the St. Croix River in Maine to Puget Sound in Washington.

Captain P. H. Uberoth, commanding the New England division of the United States Coast Guard Service, today announced that he had been authorized by Washington to enlist all coners, who prove acceptable, until further orders.

Captain Uberoth said that men with Navy or Coast Guard experience will be eligible for petty officers' warrants almost on the day of their enlistment. Men with a thorough knowledge of gas engines, also electricians, carpenters and machinists are wanted and men of these ratings will receive high pay.

The Dry Navy, soon to be put in commission, will consist of twenty destroyers, two mine sweepers and 350 gasoline speed boats.

It will be incorporated directly into the Coast Guard service and officers and men on the new fleet will be eligible for promotion in the regular ships of the service.

The New England headquarters of the service is in the Custom House Tower in Boston.

FRENCH PROFESSOR FLAYS U. S. SCHOOLS

Atlantic City, May 10.—Criticism bevelled at the educational methods of American colleges and schools and matters allied thereto, was delivered by M. André Morize, exchange French professor at Harvard University, in an address before the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, in convention here.

Deploring the "enormous expenditures" on buildings and equipment by institutions of learning in this country to the detriment of sufficiently well paid teaching staffs, Professor Morize stated that the average school teacher was paid much better in France than here and suggested that excessive moneys spent upon the physical equipment of colleges and schools in the United States could be "much better expended on men."

CATCH TWO YOUTHS IN E. BOSTON STORE

Patrolman J. T. Foley of East Boston today thought he saw a light in the store at Frank Wasserman, No. 60 Bennington street. He peeped in through the window, then tapped on the sidewalk with his night-stick. Patrolmen Flinn and Lord came. They found inside James Pulsone and John Garshinsky, two East Boston youths, each but sixteen years old, with barrels filled with shoes.

The two lads gave up peacefully and were locked up, charged with breaking and entering and larceny.

MEXICAN GUNBOAT FIRES ON U. S. VESSEL

Norfolk, Va., May 10.—The American steamer Gaston arrived here with a tale of having been driven out of Mexican waters by a gunboat believed to have been a federal craft. Captain Hudgings said his vessel was lying outside the Frontera last Sunday, preparing to discharge a cargo of grain and load bananas when a Mexican gunboat hove in sight and began firing. The gunboat signalled the American craft to get out of Mexican waters as fast as she could.

"I protested," he continued, "but there was nothing to do but sail."

1,792 APPLY TO JOIN C. M. T. CAMPS

Col. B. Winship, in charge of the Citizens' Military Training Camp recruiting at army base, South Boston, reported today that the department had 1,792 applications up to today it and had accepted 1,495 young men. Automobile did all three "jobs."

WANT FLAPPERS OFF JOB LEAST

Chain Store Head Says Senior Employes Lose 41 Per Cent. More Time

Nature certainly is wonderful.

Here comes that pert little personage, whom comical fellows have nicknamed the flapper, who proves she can burn the candle at both ends.

Impossible, say you. Not at all, chirp the flappers—and Arthur B. Emmons, director of the Harvard mercantile health work, plays the part of echo.

Director Emmons has saved up his statistics and now discovers that in industry the shingle-bobbed, bare-kneed, silk-stockinged, low-necked, chimmying and saucy flapper is Babe Ruthing it attendance.

BETTER TRAINING.

In Director Emmons' chain of stores he discovers that senior employes lose 14 per cent. more time than the flappers—those girls under nineteen years old—mostly sleeping.

The New England Health Conference, in session at the John Hancock building this week, raised its sanitary eyebrows at this discovery by Director Emmons and the world rolled around again.

The flapper sells her hugs attendance batting average because of better health training, Mr. Emmons said. "The boys and girls out of the schools are coming to industry with better bodily machines and better health habits than their parents did."

COLDS EXPENSIVE.

Guess what the most expensive American disease is? No, it's not appendicitis. It's the common cold—common enough to be in reach of everyone. This statement, too, is said at Director Emmons' door.

Colds cost more time in industry than tuberculosis, diphtheria, cancer and pneumonia combined. Nearly 40 per cent. of all time lost in American industry is chargeable to colds. Next comes indigestion and nervous disorders. But these two might as well be married. Ninety per cent. of all indigestion is caused by nervousness.

10-STORY BLOCK PLANNED FOR STUART ST.

Erection of a ten-story business block on Stuart street, near Berkeley street, is understood to be forecast in the announcement today of the sale of 15,000 square feet of land by the trustees of the Park Square Real Estate Trust to Walter M. Evatt.

The land has a frontage of 100 feet on Stuart street, adjoining the property of the Edison Illuminating Company.

It is understood W. M. Evatt Company at once will start rection of the structure covering the entire premises, to be occupied by the Pettingill Andrews Company, dealers in electrical fixtures and supplies. The total cost of the land and improvements will be in excess of $1,000,000.

The brokers in the transaction were Sleeper & Dunlop, representing Mr. Evatt and the Pettingill Andrews Company, and J. S. Draper and W. J. McDonald, selling agents of the Real Estate Trust.

3 SAFES BLOWN FOR $400 IN HAMPTON, N. H

Hampton, N. H., May 10.—Cracksmen blew three safes here early today for a total of $400. The safe of the Hampton Co-operative Bank, a new institution, was the richest. Most of the money was obtained here. In the same building the safe of Tobey & Merrill, insurance agents, was blown and the balance of the $400 stolen. Then the burglars went to the Boston & Maine Railroad station, a few feet away. Here they blew both combination and handle off the safe, making it impossible to open it. Police believe three men in all did the jobs.

ORIGINATOR OF MOTHERS' DAY SEES MAYOR

Miss Anna Jarvis Here for Exercises on the Common Tomorrow

Miss Anna Jarvis, founder of Mothers' Day, came to Boston today to take part in the exercises on the Common tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, in connection with the observance of that day here.

With Colonel and Mrs. Walter Duncan of the Volunteers of America, she visited Mayor Curley at City Hall, where she was received officially and presented with the gold key of the city.

She in turn pinned on the lapel of the coat of the Mayor a Mothers' Day button.

The exercises incident to the observance of Mother's Day are scheduled to take place at 2 p. m. Music will be furnished by five bands. In the event of inclement weather, the exercises will be held at the Tremont Temple.

In honor of Mother's Day Governor Cox today planted a birch tree on the Derne street side of the State House grounds. It is the only birch in that section and its white bark stands out conspicuously.

TWO-WEEKS-OLD BABY ABANDONED IN LYNN

A blue-eyed baby girl, two weeks old, was found abandoned in the sun porch of the home of Mrs. Mary Deeds of No. 48 South Common street, Lynn.

Underclothing of silk and wool gave evidence of good care previous to the abandonment. Police took charge of the baby and found laundry marks on the clothing which they believe will lead to the identification of the parents.

Flowers for the Living

History, for the past ten years has been in the making. During that time no single American has had greater influence in shaping this history than Henry Cabot Lodge.

Senator Lodge was born in Boston on May 12, 1850. Trained as a lawyer, his instincts were rather those of a man of letters, and more than a score of books, largely dealing with early American history, have come from his pen.

Senator Lodge celebrates his birthday on Monday. Send him a card or letter of congratulations to his office in the Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Ayer is president of the Farwell Mills and Farwell Bleachery, treasurer of the Nyanza Mills and Cabot Manufacturing company and a director in the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company, Lancaster Mills, National Shawmut Bank, Fairhaven Mills and Paper Mills Insurance Company. He is a noted yachtsman.

COLLEGE MAIDS MUST STICK TO PATHWAYS

"KEEP OFF THE GRASS. YOU'LL DULL THE BLADES."

Signs carrying that appeal stare up at Wellesley College misses over all the college campus.

They cause the young ladies to pause and think twice before taking that short cut to the next class, even though they know that the "last bell" will ring within a few seconds.

Then these belated girls follow a detour to their destination, and even though they arrive a bit late and brave professional displeasure they are consoled by the fact they have done their bit to preserve the beauty of their Alma Mater's campus.

The new signs were introduced recently when Superintendent of Grounds Wood learned that the old signs, which read "KEEP OFF THE GRASS," were not sufficiently effective.

Mr. Wood then conceived the ingenious idea that would appeal to the sense of humor of the students. Hence, the novel signs.

ORCA, IN COLLISION, DUE AT N. Y. MONDAY

New York, May 10.—The steamship Orca, which was damaged in a collision with the Norwegian freighter Porsanger in a fog off Father Point, Que., Thursday night, probably will arrive in this port early Monday morning, Captain Matthews advised the Royal Mail Steam Packet company, the owners, in a wireless message.

"Expect to arrive at 8 a. m. Monday," said Captain Matthews. "No drydocking required. Ship can sail in itinerary."

Fifty-one passengers are aboard the Orca. None of them was injured in the collision.

ACCUSES AMERICA OF MILITARISM

Rome, May 10.—The Messagero, commenting on the proposed increase in American naval forces, says it confirms the fear that the Japanese-American immigration incident, although passed without immediate grave consequences, has left a "dangerous state of hostility." Japanese reaction to the American immigration law, and embitterment of political relations, are driving the United States to a fever of armaments and a determination to have a navy equal or superior to that of England, the newspaper declares, adding that America, the richest and strongest country economically, is determined to become the most warlike nation and the strongest in a military way.

NEWTON'S RATE IS 1 IN 54

Harvard Medical Expert Tells How to Avoid "Fat Man's" Disease

By GRACE DesCHAMPS.

There's one joy in being poor—

You won't die of diabetes.

You may die of tuberculosis, or rickets or starve to death, but you've got the lap on rich people who live in Brookline.

One well-fed Brooklinelte out of every thirty dies of diabetes.

Brookline is the richest town in the world—and it has the highest MORBIDITY rate—which means frequency of the disease—in the world.

NEWTON SAFER.

Out in Newton, it's a little safer. One out of every fifty-four deaths is due to diabetes.

These were some of the interesting facts that Dr. Elliot P. Joslin, professor of clinical medicine at Harvard Medical School, and America's foremost authority on diabetes, told physicians and students that packed the assembly hall at the Health Institute in the John Hancock Building.

Boston and New York come next—although far from the rate set by Boston's wealthy suburbs—in the frequency of diabetes. Twenty-five and twenty-nine persons, respectively, per hundred thousand, in Boston and New York, have the disease.

"FAT MAN'S DISEASE."

"It's a fat man's disease. If you don't want to have it, don't get fat."

That was the substance of Dr. Joslin's message.

"Lettuce, instead of bananas grape fruit, instead of apples; potatoes, but no bread, and go lightly on cream, butter, bacon and candy, if you have achieved adulthood and want to shun diabetes."

So says Dr. Joslin.

While young children do have the disease, its rate is high according to the age of the population, asserts Dr. Joslin, and in proportion to its wealth.

"The high age rate of Brookline and Newton is an important factor in its prevalency there," he declares, "although, of course, the abundance of food is the main reason.

MANY JEWISH VICTIMS.

"One reason for the frequent occurrence of diabetes in New York is traced to the high percentage of Jewish people there. The Jewish race constitute thirty per cent. of the population, and they have been found to have a special proneness to the disease.

"In the fourth or fifth decade, the Jewish people are likely to put on more weight than other races, and weight is the big factor in diabetes. It is this characteristic which explains the frequency among them."

China and Japan are singularly free from the disease, says Dr. Joslin, due to their limited food supply.

The death rate in the United States jumped from 14 per hundred thousand in 1880 to 16.8 for the same number in 1920, the noted physician declared.

COMPLICATIONS MENACE.

"The complications of diabetes are its worst phases," Dr. Joslin continues. "Gangrene is the commonest of these, one-half of all hospital patients dying from diabetes last year having this complication.

"Insulin is enabling persons who contract diabetes due to a cold of the disease and to be otherwise normally healthy. In some cases the insulin puts the patient in sufficiently good condition to be able to do without it and to merely keep up his diet.

"However, it's a waste of time and money on insulin and fail to continue your diet. You've got to have the two working together."

FEAR OUTBREAK ON VON MOLTKE DAY

Berlin, May 10 (A.P.).—Trouble between the communists and nationalists is feared by the authorities at Halle, Prussian Saxony, tomorrow, when Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, General Ludendorff, and more than a score of other former generals together with thousands of nationalists from all parts of the country, take part in a gigantic patriotic demonstration in connection with the unveiling of a monument to Field Marshal Von Moltke. This movement is to replace the one destroyed by the Communists on New Year's Eve.

HARVARD, PENN AND COLUMBIA MEET IN BIG REGATTA

BIG CREWS BATTLE ON CHARLES

RACES ON THE CHARLES.

Freshman race—Harvard vs. M. I. T., 4:30 p. m.

Varsity 150-pound crews—M. I. T., Penn and Harvard, 5:00 p. m.

Varsity Junior crews—Columbia, M. I. T., Penn and Harvard, 5:30 p.m.

Varsity crews—Harvard, Penn and Columbia, 6 p. m.

The second chapter in the current rowing season will be written on a short stretch of the Charles this afternoon when the varsity, junior varsity and 150-pound Harvard crews clash with invading eights from Pennsylvania.

Coach Stevens.

From a varsity race standpoint, it looks like a Harvard day. The Harvard University, stroked by Parker Hamilton, outweights the Penn crew, stroked by E. H. Bennet, about four pounds to a man.

The Harvard crew has an average weight of 179 pounds, compared with 175 pounds for the Penn senior varsity. And the Columbia varsity, which musters an average strength of 168 pounds per man, is at best a "little man" among "giants." It looks like another poor day for Columbia.

Prospects for a Harvard victory in the junior varsity race are not so bright, though. The Penn crew, stroked by D. Inniger, is one of the fastest junior varsities in the East.

The Harvard junior crew is stroked by Canning and averages 176 pounds a man. It is a speedy, smooth-rowing crew with lots of power and courage. It is an eight well worthy of Inniger's steel, and a splendid race looms.

Coach Rice.

The 150-pound crew race should be a rocker. Harvard has a remarkably fast eight-weight crew in Hollis French's eight and this crew in trials has given the crimson senior crew a run for its money.

The Penn 150-pounder is stroked by Roach and shows plenty of strength, while Columbia's 150-shell stroked by Erskine is the fastest Columbia shell for its weight in years.

It was originally intended to have a triangular freshman race, but both Penn and Columbia withdrew crews last week. As a result Coach Shaw will have his two yearling eights matched against a Tech eight.

Tech will also have an eight in the 150-pound class. This was decided at a last moment when it was decided to send but one Tech crew to the Cornell meet in Ithaca.

MAYOR NOONE TO PITCH FIRST BALL

Revere baseball fans will turn out in large numbers for the opening game of the season tomorrow at Curtis Park, between the Revere K. of C. and the Neponset Town Team. Mayor Thomas A. Noone will pitch the first ball, with Peter F. Connolly on the receiving end. Both teams will march to the flagpole for the annual flag raising.

Manager Bill Smith has signed several new players for this season. Among them is Frank Silva, former Dean Academy player, who will play center field. Shepard, one of Revere's favorites, will play first base. Hayes of Revere will probably draw the second assignment for the opener, with Garuboldi or Baker opposing him.

EDDIE WILLIAMS OUT TO WALLOP BUD DEMPSEY

Eddie Williams, East Boston's classy featherweight contender for Red Chapman's title, and "Bud" Dempsey of Lowell battle at the Casino A. C. tonight at Lynn on next Monday Williams will take the place of Mick McAdams who was injured in his recent bout with Joey Sanger.

Williams, a local favorite, and Dempsey are wanted by the Suffolk A. A. and two out-of town clubs, and Jack Murphy is elated that he was able to grab the match.

Wee Willie Woods, the Scotch flyweight who made such a hit at the Arena in his battle with Tommy Milton Wednesday night will meet Jack Cloud, of Holyoke in the semi-final and the fans who like plenty of action don't want to miss seeing this pair.

There will be two six-round preliminaries. Jimmy Plaza of Beverly will meet Georgie Seigal of Revere and Tommy Clayton of Boston is paired with Dan Norman of Norway.

ANDOVER FAVORITE FOR BIG SCHOOL MEET

By FRED C. LANE

The management of the Harvard interscholastic track meet, slated for this afternoon at the Stadium, opens the thirty-ninth annual affair with a new set of records for competitors and the like that outnumbers the entry list of any college fostering scholastic sports with the exception of perhaps the Penn Relay games.

Three hundred and four youngsters from all over New England will gather at the Harvard field to win honors in the outdoor classic of the season. The number of schools participating is also increased from 24 to 29, which speaks well for the manner in which this gigantic affair is put on.

Hank Moore.

Andover Academy with two successive wins to its credit seeks to win again today. They are the favorites, yet expect that usual hard fight for the Exeter entry which in past years was a dominating factor in prep school ranks.

The Bay State school had little opposition offered last season and carried off honors by a lop-sided score. The tables are reversed this year, for Exeter is entering a stronger team that may upset all predictions.

John Clurkin.

Of the public schools tackling the part, all hands point to Medford High to win. Coach Simmons has the best balanced team of the many down to compete and should fare well in the point of scoring.

MORE ABOUT REDUCING DIETS.

Today I want to give you some more with their calorie value. They have been carefully prepared for those who are living on the "count your calories" diet, and I am sure [illegible] will find them helpful.

For the benefit of those who have missed our previous calorie talks, I will say briefly, that this system of [illegible] counting the calories in the food we eat. [illegible] for reducing [illegible] weeks just [illegible]

And now for the [illegible] ordering [illegible] you want, [illegible] know the [illegible] and [illegible] before [illegible] money, to [illegible] which may [illegible] to [illegible] dishes for the amount you have to spend.

LAMB CHOPS EN CASSEROLE

Buy six good sized lamb chops—the leg chops—and have them cut thin. Salt and pepper them and roll them in flour. Lay them in a buttered casserole and pour over them half a can of tomatoes. Cover and bake slowly for an hour and a half, or until the meat is tender. This entire dish equals 2,100 calories in value and will serve six persons if one chop is allowed. To get the calorie value of the individual servings, divide the 2,100 by six, which gives you 350.

Here is a recipe for

STRING BEAN AND CELERY SALAD

The entire dish equals only 50 calories plus the calories value of the French dressing used.

Chop together 1 cup of cooked string beans and ½ cup of celery, very rather fine. Mix with French dressing and serve on crisp lettuce leaves. Another salad low in calorie value is

FRUIT SALAD

Made by slicing 6 small oranges, [illegible] one on each individual salad plate on a bed of crisp lettuce with two small cooked prunes, pitted and chopped, in the center of each salad. Slice ½ tbsp. of coconut over each portion and dress with a fruit dressing made as follows.

Take 1½ orange juice, 1 3 prune juice and 1 3 French dressing. Mix together and pour over the salad. The value of the entire salad is only 1,200 calories, plus the dressing. Divide by six you have 200 calories in each salad.

[illegible] suggest

BAKED DATES

[illegible] sprinkle the ¼ cup of sliced nuts over the top and bake 4 minutes in a moderate oven.

If we receive enough letters to indicate a real interest in these reducing diets I will be glad to give you more recipes and more tables of food values. As I said often, I don't advise rapid reduction. Follow this system and you will reduce gradually and harmlessly, but the most important part of it all is having strength of mind enough to stick to the diet once started.

Come on in a positive decision that you are going to reduce and the first ½ dozen refusals of forbidden foods are the hardest part. Don't be a baby [illegible] just keep in mind the image of how you are going to look with those 25 or 30 superfluous pounds removed and I am sure you will have all the courage necessary to see it through. And it really isn't such a hardship. For an [illegible] time, let me give you a sample menu for a day.

BREAKFAST

One slice of cold meat loaf, with two leaves of lettuce, 1 tbsp. tomato catsup, 1 slice bread, with ½ pat butter, 1 cup tea with 1 tsp. sugar, 1 slice lemon, 2 sweet [illegible] This will equal 355 c

DINNER

Two [illegible] thsps. home baked beans, 2 tbsp. thsps. mashed turnip, 1 hot biscuit, ½ pat butter, 1 tsp. jelly, 1 helping cabbage, green corn and pimento salad with lettuce and 1 tbsp. mayonnaise or [illegible] cup ice 2 tsp. CHICKIE

The Beautiful, but Bluntly Honest Story of a Boston Girl

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

SHE dropped these thoughts cruelly, like hot stones, into her heart. It grew so heavy she felt she could no longer endure its weight.

She had reached the breaking point, and she knew it. Too incredible to have it end like this.

She saw herself rushing to him, twining her fingers in his hand, making him speak to her making him turn. This vision of herself pleading made her wince—it was pitiful.

She dented it—no, she would never do this. Cry her eyes out first. Three days and he let them pass—let her go out of that restaurant. Oh, he was probably hard and confident about it—knew she would come begging to him.

Her eyes were filled now. She didn't care. Suddenly some one walked at her side, a hand on her elbow. She stopped, overcome.

He said: "Chickie!" Breathless like that. Then "Chickie, what was here?"

She gave him a swift glance, all tremulous, not daring to meet his eyes.

"Stay down then, will you?"

"Tough to send a man away. Speak to him like that, I suppose. Well, he hadn't meant to—he didn't mean anger for all this she walked on silent. Oh, he was the one who said no one. He cared! Well then he was the one who should be mad now, Chickie? Ah, you don't like me any more? Please, stay down—"

"Well—but I don't know—"

"All right, then—I know—"

"Oh—but three days—"

"Yes—and it is not going to be four. You don't want that, do you? Listen, Chickie, just because the one who ran away. Weren't you now—"

She tried to speak, pouring she was quite her right to walk on her own because I felt that he was right, but he had seemed to her so cruel—so cold and unfeeling, and now he was so warm and tender. He did not understand. He said angrily: "Chickie, were you going to [illegible] like this?"

"I won't!"

"But if there were just the two of us—I'd show you right now how sweet—not a ripple ever—"

"There is the world—" She spoke in a low voice, looking at the rising pale ladies waved of fog, hurrying through the trees vanishing deliciously in the summer lanes about the lake. "We can't shut the world out so. And there isn't [illegible]"

She wasn't measuring her words —scarcely heeding what she said. Their import came upon her startlingly. [illegible] "Harry, you [illegible] you [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commissioner

Dr. Mahoney

BALDNESS is an affliction that is apparently becoming more and more common and no matter how much the victim of baldness says he doesn't mind it, there is no man living who wouldn't give much to have a heavy head of hair.

This is not an article telling you how to grow hair on bald heads. But I will discuss some of the things that cause baldness. The follicle of every hair in the head has a blood vessel which supplies the hair with the nourishment that causes it to grow and thrive.

There are many persons who do not have strong heart action. The pressure exerted by the heart is not sufficient to send a full supply of blood to the top of the head. Such a condition does not mean that the person may not live to a ripe old age or enjoy perfect health. It does mean, however, that the roots of the hair do not always get the blood they require and the hair consequently dies and falls out.

Women are just as susceptible to baldness as men. But they seldom wear hats that press the scalp tightly and cut off the supply of blood the hair needs. That is the reason there is less baldness among women than men.

To have strong, healthy hair the body must be well nourished. Certain foods contain elements needed by the hair.

The idea that baldness is hereditary is all wrong. Just as wrong is the idea that it is harmful to wash the hair frequently. Several times a week is not too often to wash the scalp and if the hair seems dry, a very little oil may be applied.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. mother is troubled with chronic bronchitis. Is there anything I can do to prevent her having it year after year? She is almost 60 years old. MRS. K.

Bronchitis is frequently one of the degenerative changes of old age and if so, is not easily cured. It is often the result of repeated attacks of acute bronchitis. Cold and changeable weather is often a contributory cause. Rapid changes of temperature will also go far to cause an attack. The life and habits of the patient should be carefully regulated as regards food, rest and exercise.

My baby does not seem to gain much weight and looks to me rather delicate. What do you think is wrong with her? MRS. H.

It would appear to me that the fault lies with the baby's food. I would recommend that you take her to your family physician or the baby clinic in your district, if there is one, and get a formula for feeding prescribed and follow it exactly. Great care and accuracy should be observed in the preparation of baby's food.

Is cancer a curable disease? I have been told that it is not and that there is no use to be cured if a person really has cancer. MRS. B. O.

It is possible to remove the so-called cancerous lesions and to prevent the beginning of cancer. Even after cancer has developed, it is in many cases curable, but treatment should not be delayed. The possibility of curing cancer by operation is much greater than is commonly realized. Surgeons have apparently learned all they can about the best technical methods of removing the diseased, but hope lies in the earliest possible treatment and patients must seek early treatment.

WOMAN FAVORED BIBLE REVISE BY HER SEX

Today is the final day of the Bible contest—your last chance to send in answers to the questions:

"Does the World Need a New Bible?" and "Are 'The Ten Commandments Sufficient?"

What is your opinion in the matter? Do you think the old Bible has outlived its day and should give way to a new Book of the Word, or do you think the present Bible is everlasting?

Send in your answer before it is too late.

Miss Ann Burgess, Jr., of No. 16 Landseer street, West Roxbury, is emphatic in her declaration that the present Bible and the Ten Commandments are sufficient. Read an excerpt from her letter:

"Of course we do not need a new Bible and of course the Ten Commandments are applicable to even the hurried, rushed life of this Twentieth Century."

NOT UNREASONABLE.

"What if the Ten Commandments are not of modern trend. Surely they are not unreasonable. They always have been the great basis of human brotherhood and each man and woman wearing cheerless the hope of earning the friendship of those who love their God."

On the other hand Patrick Murphy, of No. 31 Riverview street, suggestion that women should rewrite Andover, in fact as emphatically the Bible, the suggestion about a new Bible and new Commandments are recommended.

"Scripture is responsible for most of the ignorance existing today. The Bible ought to be revised by a committee of women, for men have had a whack at it many times and did not omit the many degrading statements in it against women."

Mrs. W. M. Thayer of No. 78 West street, Greenfield, also disagrees with this member of her sex.

"No, we do not need a new Bible," she declared in her letter. "God's Holy Book has been the one greatest book since the beginning, nearly two thousand years ago. The people are committing a great wrong when they begin to meddle with the Scriptures. They have all they can do if they will attend to their own affairs."

"As for the Ten Commandments—who could improve them? Could you? Why should anyone wish to change something we know so little about and are learning less and less of it every day?"

IRELAND MAY SEND 74,860 TO AMERICA

Dublin, May 10.—It is the computation of shipping agents that, if the new immigration bill comes law in the United States, and if Ireland is allotted a quota of 2 per cent. of the Irish population resident in the States in 1890, Ireland would be entitled to send to America 40,000 emigrants.

Or, taking the whole country north and south, and allowing for the further 2 per cent. of the next kin of Irish resident in U. S. A., the figure would be 74,860. Either figure is considerably in excess of existing Irish emigration.

The minister for external affairs has announced in the Dail that he is applying to America for a separate quota for the Free State. The quota for the year ending June 30 has been filled since last November and no Irish immigrant can be admitted to the United States before July.

BROCKTON SHOE FIRM ON FULL TIME

Brockton, May 10.—The Diamond Shoe Company, beginning next week, will go on full time. For several months production has been curtailed, as in all the Brockton factories. Superintendent Henry Rubin said today that a full crew of cutters would go to work Monday, and that the other departments would go on full time as soon as the increased volume of work reached them. This firm employs 1,300 hands.

BE THANKFUL for your good American dollar that stays put and is worth one hundred cents every day.

Foreign money is down, but the dollar stays fixed. In France, England, Italy, Belgium, the franc, pound, lire boo up and down, as the news changes. The strike of miners in the Ruhr has cut almost 20 per cent. from the value of every Frenchman's money.

STRIKES in Germany are spreading dangerously. The hatred and suffering that will result will provide an excellent "culture" for the development of the germs of Bolshevism.

Coal mining is stopped in the Ruhr. France will have to take a new and decided stand. The strike movement, which has become a Communist movement, can be put down, of course, the Germans being virtually unarmed. But it will take a great deal of shooting.

WITH THE bad news there is always good news. And luckily the bad news is only for the day. The really good news lasts forever.

For instance, Dr. Felton, of Harvard University, after five years of study, has isolated an "antibody" that kills the germ of pneumonia. Doctors testify, after experimenting with 120 cases, that the death rate will be cut 25 and possibly 50 per cent. That one discovery will save more lives every few years than all the French machine guns could destroy among the German mine workers in a year's steady shooting.

TAKES ALL NICOTINE OUT OF TOBACCO

Paris, May 10.—The State tobacco factory laboratory has discovered a process for removing all the nicotine from tobacco without. It is claimed, affecting its flavor. A plant is now being erected for the manufacture of a new brand on a large scale, and it is hoped to place it on sale within four months.

FRENCH AVIATOR REACHES BANGKOK

Paris, May 10.—An unofficial telegram was received at the Ministry of Aviation today reporting the arrival of Lieutenant Pelletier D'Oisy, long distance flier, at Bangkok, Siam, at 11 o'clock.

The ministry of aviation admitted that yesterday's statement that the aviator had reached Bangkok was premature.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A LONDON doctor has just invented a machine which will recharge human brains.

THIS is a wonderful idea, and hereafter a man won't have to throw his head away just because he has no more sense left.

ALL he has to do is to take his cranium to a service station and get a new filling for his skull.

WE ride in used automobiles, so why shouldn't we run around with reconditioned brains?

A BRAIN isn't necessarily worthless just because you use it once in a while.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN used his head all his life and his brain was as good as new when he died.

AT the end of fifty years it was better than the day he got it.

HUNDREDS of second-hand skulls are worth a whole lot more than brand new ones.

EVERYBODY who comes into this world is given a set of brains free of charge.

BUT none of them is guaranteed.

THEY'RE delivered to us F. O. B. "As Is."

IN the future when a man hasn't any thoughts left all he'll have to do will be to have his forehead recharged.

THIS machine is nothing but an electrical device which can be attached to any lamp socket the same as a washing machine or a cooling fan.

WITH ten feet of extension cord and three or four sockets, the whole family can get some good sense at the same time.

Gives Aid, Asks It

Editor Helping Hand:

I am writing again, hoping to help some mother who can use a few clothes for a boy about seven years of age. Also have one little sailor suit to fit a boy between two and three. I received the address I wished and sent a bundle for the little nine-year-old girl and had a letter of thanks yesterday. A lady in Bridgeport, Ct., has written, saying she would send me some pieces of patchwork. Just what I really need. My husband has been out of work most nine months, and I do what I can to earn needtime I need, by making holders and quilt tops to sell.

MRS. F. P.

Thank you again. We have sent you the address of Mrs. E. A. D., who has boys seven and three. We will let you know if you are offered any more pieces.

Hone He Gets It

Editor Helping Hand:

I have four pretty write dresses and a coat and bonnet and socks and bibs to fit a baby from six months old to one year old. I would be glad to send them to some mother if you would send me the address. My boy was to receive a phonograph from a lady through the Helping Hand, but don't have her plans matured, for that was four months ago, and he has not received it yet. He is lying in bed and has hardly a bit of use of his whole body. He had hip disease and was in bed for five months. The disease has lodged in almost every joint, making them swollen and useless, and the doctor says nothing can be done for him. If somebody would only send him a phonograph it would make him very happy. He is twelve.

Thank you for the little things Mrs. J. H. whose address has been sent you, will be thankful for them. We surely do hope your little boy gets the phonograph.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

Handy getting executives out bed at any hour of the night or morning to ask them some business question or to give them information over the telephone. A few of our dynamic business leaders have this habit. William M. Wood, the veteran head of the American Woolen Company, I am told, is one of them.

B. C. Forbes

Some men of importance are clashes into bed a mind while he is

Immediately he starts putting it into motion. This may entail ringing up one executive or half a dozen executives and heads of departments. He reasons that if he is willing to spring to duty at any hour of the day or night, his associates should likewise be willing.

Incidentally, long-continued concentration, without regard to hours of sleep, has told upon Wood's health. There is talk of his assuming the chairmanship of the mammoth concern and having a younger man become president. Friends who are concerned over Mr. Wood's health are anxious to see such a change. But Mr. Wood has been so long accustomed to handling everything that he doesn't, it is said, relish relinquishing them, even in part.

Like James B. Duke, Tobacco King, Mr. Wood, who is sometimes called "The Woolen Goods King," has contracted a fondness for acquiring palatial homes. But, also like Mr. Duke, Mr. Wood allows business to make such demands upon him that he doesn't find a maximum of opportunity to enjoy lounging from one palace to another.

It seems to be decreed that before a man can spend millions of dollars in building or buying palaces, wherever his fancy suggests, he has to spend as much of himself as acquiring that million dollars he isn't in the best of shape to enjoy these gorgeous homes.

Railroading produced a number of big wealthy men in its earlier days. Latterly, the railroad field has been more productive of outstanding figures, such as Henry M. Rolleday, of Chicago; Henry L. Doherty, of New York; Samuel Insull, of Chicago; Washington E. Creed, of San Francisco; John R. Mott, of Los Angeles; Charles A. Stone, of Boston; Mortimer Fleischhacker, of San Francisco; Sidney Z. Mitchell, of New York.

Colonel Rolleday, who died last week, was a high-type man. He built up a business of huge magnitude, not by discovering any short-cuts, but by religiously following the principles taught him at his mother's knee. His character won him reputation, his reputation won him capital, and capital enabled him to do big things.

I have just received from a California banking friend, Leo V. Belden, vice president of the Bank Italy, the following:

"As one of the largest distributors of bonds on the Pacific Coast, we have participated in a important national financing for years, but have never handled an issue that sold as quickly and readily as the recent Hearst Publications issue. Without advertising or selling effort, we sold over five per cent. of the total issue in two days. The public simply insisted on buying those bonds."

APPEALS TO THE EYE AND TO THE PURSE

NEW OVERLAND "BLUEBIRD"

BALLOON TIRES ON OVERLAND 'BLUEBIRD'

With public interest in balloon tires at its height Willys-Overland announces its newest model, the Overland Blue Bird, the lowest-priced motor car with genuine balloon tires furnished as standard equipment.

The combination of a long, roomy body done in rich, but not too bright Peacock Blue, set off by black fenders and running gear, smartened by nickeled radiator, windshield stanchions and outside door handles; with upholstery of a rich shade to match the body, and a top of similar hue, creates an appearance of spirit and sparkle that is entirely in keeping with its happy name of Blue Bird.

A new standard in riding qualities has also been reached by the coupling of the patented triplex spring suspension with balloon tires.

Genuine Fisk 31x4.50 balloon tires, positively guarantee utmost physical relaxation to the occupants of the car even over the roughest highways.

Both Mr. Herbert M. Fitch, New England branch manager, and Mr. Fred Rose, Sales Manager of Boston Overland and Willys-Knight automobiles, have remarked about the unusually favorable and enthusiastic reception given the Blue Bird by visitors along automobile row.

HOME SEEKERS SHOW GREAT ACTIVITY

That suburban property is not inactive upon the real estate market is clearly shown by the number of sales which are being made.

The most recent report of transfers from the office of Charles J. Roche, No. 24 Milk street, totals seventeen sales.

Of these, four were consummated in Somerville and a like number in Medford; three in Belmont, while Arlington and Everett were represented with two each. The remaining two parcels reported sold through the Charles J. Roche office were in Dorchester.

It is interesting to note that all these conveyances were to purchasers who bought for their own occupancy.

Most of these homes are of the two-family type, three of which have been recently brought to completion. Of these, two are located on the desirable Wyman estate development located on Lake street and Alfred road, Arlington.

Here, in this beautiful Spy Pond section, nineteen modern two-family houses were recently built and of these over half have been transferred to many foresighted and ambitious home-seekers.

DOOR CONCERN TO LOCATE IN NEW QUARTERS

It is more than likely that the mere mention in New England of windows, frames, doors, sashes, immediately suggests the Brockway-Smith Corporation of Boston.

Back in 1890, at Broad and Market streets, Lynn, in a little store, a business was established which dealt in doors and windows, hardware and paint.

The policy of real merchandising and service necessitated an enlargement of the first quarters and in 1898 a new location was taken in the old A. F. Smith Shoe factory.

Despite this move within three years it was again necessary to move to No. 61 Munroe street, Lynn, with still larger space.

The prophecies foresaw that while Lynn was a very fine business center, a better handling for their business all over New England could be obtained with a new location in Boston.

Accordingly the main office was moved again to No. 18 Washington street north, Boston.

It was at this location that their present line of goods got into full speed, with the result that Brockway-Smith were selling a most complete line of sash, front and garage doors, together with windows (glazed and unglazed), frames, mantles, cabinets, columns, posts, etc.

Soon even further development necessitated still larger quarters, and in 1911, the main office was moved to its recent location at No. 78 Canal street, Boston, and a warehouse with water front and sidetrack facilities obtained at Medford street, Charlestown.

From a small start in 1890, the firm today is the largest dealer in specific building materials east of Chicago, and carries a stock of well over half a million dollars.

On May 15, Brockway-Smith will again move to larger quarters and will occupy a space of over 180,000 feet. The new location is at No. 405 Medford street, Charlestown, and the number of employes 350.

BILLIARD TABLE CONCERN HAD RAPID GROWTH

Quality and service—these are the characteristics which have paved the way to the success of Oliver J. Briggs & Sons, makers of the finest billiard tables in New England.

This company is one of the oldest of New England. Making its debut in 1868 business shortly after the Civil War, it has grown tremendously with the passing of the years until it has become the largest billiard-table making concern in the State.

But at all times the company has stuck by its original policy of quality and service.

The application of quality and service is shown by the tremendous advance in sales this year. The company is literally swamped with orders to fill not alone for clubs and shops with billiard tables.

The latest club to be fitted out with billiard tables is that in the Square and Compass Club, at No. 648 Boylston street. Other Masonic clubs to which Oliver J. Briggs billiard tables have been installed are located in Fitchburg, New Bedford, Fall River, Stoneham, East Boston, Lowell, Hyde Park and Lawrence.

HONEST VALUE WATCHWORD OF AUCTIONEER

Auctioneering is probably one of the most slandered of professions.

Mention the word "auctioneer," and people start as though you had mentioned the word "crook." Dishonest dealings by auctioneers of the past have cast a stigma on the profession which even the work of honest auctioneers cannot erase.

The Harry Benjamin Company, No. 218 Canal street, is a live-wire denial of the mythology of dishonest auctioneers.

For thirty years this concern has done business in the Hub. And during that period the company has endeavored to show Bostonians that there are honest auctioneers. That they have been successful is attested by the interest shown by an intelligent buying public in their sales.

There is nothing of the curio shop in the Harry Benjamin show rooms. Everything is done in a business-like manner. Nothing like the mush-caricatured auction shop with the red flag, a loud-mouthed salesman who foams at the mouth, who heaps abuse on the audience, and flatterers who drop in "out of curiosity." People who come to the Benjamin establishment come to buy and they are treated as customers should be treated—with courtesy.

"We have always maintained our ideals of honesty," Mr. Benjamin declared. "We have found that it pays in every sense of the word. We never try to over-sell, for let a customer once think you have 'stuck' him, and you are done. It is better to treat him fairly, and he will come back again. We want our custom an intelligent buying public in their sales.

"It is this spirit of honest value which has been responsible for the steady growth of the Benjamin Company."
